War to Call Up Half of City's Doctors

PINCH LOOMS AS RESULT OF THIRD DRAFT

Age Limit of Physicians Lower Here, Medical Society Members Say.

HALF OF THEM UNDER 36

Point Out Medical Men To Be Called Regardless of Dependent Status.

Close on the heels of the third selective service lottery, physicians of the Richland County Medical society today estimated that one out of every two doctors in Mansfield would be lost to civilian practice if the war continues.

With the average age limit of physicians in Mansfield much lower than that of other cities, officers of the organization said it was feared that the city would feel the pinch of a physician shortage in the near future.

Approximately 50 per cent of the 55 physicians practicing in the city, it was estimated, are under 36—the age limit set by the war department for duty in the armed services.

The government has claimed a shortage of doctors in the armed services and Mansfield physicians under the age limit expect to be called regardless of dependents.

They point out that physicians are given commissions upon acceptance and dependents are not considered in this case

With several of the profession already in the service and another 10 per cent, representing single physicians, expected to be called for duty at any time, physicians see a problem of caring for additional patients.

They say, though, they are ready to do whatever additional work there is to do.

Meanwhile selective service officials in Mansfield were waiting the arrival of master lists of the national lottery held Tuesday night to set in motion machinery that will send to 5,020 men in Richland county questionnaires

Board officials said today they expected to have the lists within the next week or ten days.

The questionnaires however, are

$430,000 Doll House to Be on Display In City

Colleen Moore's Doll House, a fabulous miniature castle that cost $430,000 to build and furnish will be on exhibition in Mansfield the week of April 13 and its display here will be given momentum by the personal appearance of the stage and screen actress herself.

Negotiations to bring the fairyland palace to Mansfield were completed last night by Earl McVey Post of the American Legion which will share the receipts equally between Richland County Chapter of the Red Cross and the Citizens-Soldiers committee.

Miss Moore's appearance with the Doll House is quite unusual, Sam V. Fox, post commander explained, and is made possible by her contemplated visit here at that time with the Louis Bromfield family at Malabar farm.

The castle with its almost priceless furnishings will be housed during its stay here at the R. B. Gardner show room, 116 Park avenue west. Constructed of aluminum and copper the house stands on the summit of a rugged precipice and rises 14 feet into the air. It has a nine-foot front and is also nine feet in length.

TRAIN WOMEN

Cleveland Schools Plan Classes For Industrial Workers.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Classes for women to train for the enlarged industrial expansion program will begin Monday and continue for 10 weeks in a west side and an east side school, B. C. Seiple, United States employment service manager here, announc. today.

Seiple declared the classes were to acquaint women, who have had previous shop experience, with other machine work and to acquaint manufacturers—who have excluded women from their shops—with the jobs that feminine employes can do.

Boy's Death Starts Quiz On Firearms

Prosecutor Indicates That Action May Be Taken After Inquiry.

County Prosecutor Harold Lutz today announced he was considering an investigation into the sale of firearms to minors as he inquired into circumstances surrounding the death of Robert Borden, 16-year-old Mansfield Senior high school pupil, killed yesterday by a fellow-pupil in an accidental shooting near Lucas.

Lutz also indicated that probate court action would be taken against the three youths accompanying Borden on a fishing and target-shooting party which they "played hookey" to enjoy.

The prosecutor said that charges could be placed against at least two of the three youths if conferences with their parents showed that they had gone on their outing and had purchased guns and ammunition without their parents' permission.

If his talks with the parents of the boys revealed that they had acted without permission, Lutz said that one of the boys would be charged with illegal possession of firearms and that another would be charged with operating a motor vehicle in violation of the state traffic law.

Lutz said that his investigation of the case would not stress the shooting which he said was accidental but would be held to determine how four high school pupils were able to purchase guns and ammunition which brought death to young Borden and grief to his mother, Mrs Doris Borden, 30 South Adams street.

The prosecutor also served notice on firearms dealers that if the evidence given by the parents show that the guns and ammunition were sold without permission, that action would be taken.

Borden was killed almost instantly yesterday morning when he stepped directly into the line of fire of a companion, John Hergatt, 16, of 76 Waring avenue, as the tragic climax of a fishing and target-shooting party.

A record collection of $86,531 for yesterday, brought Richland county's tax payments on real estate to a total of $557,455, today just one day before the deadline for payments.

Most of the collections were "made over the counter," according to Charles Payne, county treasurer, who said that the office had been unable to open stacks of mail due to the number of property owners who presented themselves at the office.

The largest single payment yesterday was a check for $29,000 from a railroad company and other large checks were from other utilities and corporations.

With only one day left for payment of taxes before the deadline tomorrow, Payne said he expected another rush that would bring in between $50,000 and $75,000. Part of this amount will be in the mails and cannot be estimated until after the tax books close.

RAID SHIPPING

Torpedo Planes Attack Axis In Mediterranean Area.

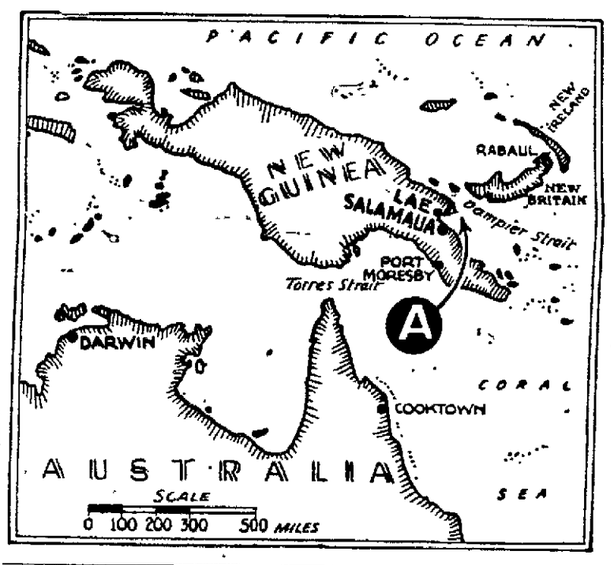
CAIRO —(AP)— The RAF announced today that torpedo-carrying planes had staged a successful attack on enemy shipping in the central Mediterranean on Tuesday night, setting one merchant ship on fire and scoring a hit on a larger vessel.

RESCUED BY U. S. SUBS

LONDON — (AP) — Fifty-four members of the crew of the British destroyer Electra which was sunk in the battle of Java were rescued by United States submarines, Reuters reported today in a dispatch from Perth, Australia.

U. S. Loses Sub But Scores Against Jap Ships

The United States navy has lost a submarine, but the sweeping attack on Japanese ships off New Guinea has more than made up for that loss. In the picture at the top is the submarine Shark, which the navy department has reported as overdue for more than a month and therefore "presumed to be lost." Map at the bottom shows where the United Nations planes ripped a Japanese invasion fleet near Salamaua on the Island of New Guinea. The Japanese, however, succeeded in making landings, and today their land troops were reported forcing their way across the island toward Port Moresby, a vital point in any attempt to invade Australia



ASKS APPROVAL OF LABOR BILL

Senator Charges Workers Pay Tribute To Work, Wants Limit on War Profit.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Charging that American workers are being forced to "pay tribute for the right to work," Rep. Howard Smith, (D) Va., today urged approval of his sweeping bill to suspend the 40-hour week, outlaw the closed shop, and limit war profits to six percent.

The plea was made before a joint meeting of the house naval and military affairs committee which tomorrow will hear War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson on the issue.

"If we can't trust labor to work to save the country—if we are going to have an insurrection, for God's sake, let's find it out now," Smith declared pounding the witness table.

Meanwhile, Secretary of the

CUTS SPEED

Alabama Governor Announces 40 Mile An Hour Limit.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. —(INS)— Gov Frank Dixon said today a maximum speed of 40 miles an hour will be inaugurated over Alabama highways April 1.

"The move," he explained, "is in line with the request of President Roosevelt who asked that speeds be reduced in the interest of the nation's war effort by conserving rubber."

Army Plane Forced Down Here Soon After 4 Crash at Lima

Forced down by adverse weather conditions, an army air corps officer landed his plane safely in a field on the Ohio State reformatory farm last night a few hours after four army pursuit planes crashed near Lima, killing the pilots.

Major F M. S Miller, an air corps public relations officer, flying from Cleveland to his base at Wright Field, near Dayton, made the landing when fog closed in at dusk yesterday.

Unable to locate municipal airport due to poor visibility, the officer set the training plane down two miles north of Mansfield, just east of state route 13. The ship was mired in the mud. Major Miller was uninjured.

Ground personnel from Wright Field were to arrive here today to remove the ship from the field and tow it a mile from route 13

ARREST JAPS

Brazil Authorities Seize Aliens Who Contact Tokyo.

SAO PAULO, Brazil—(AP)—An undisclosed number of Japanese nationals were under arrest today following a series of raids which police said uncovered evidence that the Japanese colony here was "in a state of readiness" for orders from Tokyo.

Among those arrested were 10 persons who gathered nightly to listen for radioed orders from Tokyo, authorities declared.

In Rio de Janeiro, meanwhile, the government took over a large building used by Italians ostensibly for social purposes but believed by Brazilian authorities to have been a rallying place for pro-Fascist elements potentially dangerous to Brazil.

(In San Jose, Costa Rica, President Calderon Guardia announced yesterday the seizure of strategic plans and photographs of Panama and Caribbean ports as the result of a censorship of local correspondence.

BUY IN PRISON

Convicts Purchase $5,000 Worth of Defense Bonds.

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. —(AP)— Despite the fact they can't get to sales booths, inmates at Indiana state prison have purchased $5,400 in defense stamps and bonds.

J. Edgar Wetzel, secretary to Warden A. F. Dowd, said one prisoner invested $5,000 in bonds. There are 2,585 inmates in the prison.

'Kings Row' Serial Starts Friday

"Kings Row," regarded by critics as one of the most powerful novels of all time, will come to Mansfield and vicinity in the pages of The News-Journal, starting tomorrow.

"Anything could happen in Kings Row and nearly everything does," said the literary critic of the New York Sun. "It's a grand yarn, full of the sap of life," reported the New York Times. It's one of the most absorbing books you've ever read, critics agree.

The first chapter in this gripping novel of a small town —its intrigues, its foibles, its daily laughs and sorrows, will appear in The News-Journal tomorrow. Thereafter, for 35 days, will unfold the dramatic story of Parris Mitchell.

The editor serves fair warning that if you once start reading this serialized version of Henry Bellamann's novel, you'll be waiting breathlessly every day for the next installment. So don't say we didn't warn you.

You'll love Parris Mitchell, even though you may be a bit awed by the deep thoughts that run through his mind as a young boy, as a young man, as a brilliant psychiatrist. You'll love Drake and Randy, too, and you'll weep with Randy when harm comes to Drake. And you'll shudder at the powerfully-drawn sinister figures of the novel, particularly Dr. Gordon. And you'll be fascinated by another man of medicine, Dr. Towers, and his mysterious daughter, Cassandra. Renee, the golden-haired fairytale child, will take you back through the years.

Maybe you've heard folks talking of "Kings Row," as a best-seller in book form. For serialization, this realistic novel has been censored but it has lost none of the brilliance of the original, but it contains nothing that would be taboo reading for a youngster.

SUMMONS TOP OFFICERS TO PLAN ATTACK

Brauchitsch Heads List of Men, Fired or Resigned, Who Join Fuehrer.

NOW MAPPING STRATEGY

Swiss Newspaper Says Spring Offensive Can Be Expected Soon.

(By Associated Press)

Climaxing three months of bloody retreat, Adolf Hitler has abandoned his lone-wolf role in guiding the destiny of Germans arms, it was reported today, and has called back his generals to help plan the Nazi spring offensive.

The Berlin correspondent of the Basel (Switzerland) National Zeitung said Hitler had summoned nearly all the German officers, including Field Marshal Walther Von Brauchitsch, who were ousted or resigned after the drive against Moscow failed last December.

Hitler at that time announced that his "intuition" had led him to take over supreme command of the German armies

The National Zeitung correspondent said the Nazi spring offensive might be expected soon, with the fuehrer and his generals now mapping strategy at a series of staff conferences.

The question of throwing Russia's winter steamroller into reverse still remained to be solved, however, and today's German high command communique acknowledged that the Red armies were attacking relentlessly and that "heavy defensive fighting is in progress."

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters noted continuing Russian pressure on the Kerch peninsula, in the Crimea, as well as fierce Soviet thrusts in the Donets river sector of the Ukraine, where the Russians are battering at the gates of Kharkov.

In the north, Soviet dispatches reported that Russian guerrilla

RIP PRECEDENT

British Name Australian as Middle East Representative.

LONDON—(AP)—Britain smashed all precedent today by choosing Richard G. Casey, Australian minister to Washington, as minister of state to represent the war cabinet in the Middle East.

The announcement that for the first time in the empire's history a dominion statesman is to become a member of the home government and be entrusted with a vital post was made by Prime Minister Churchill in the house of commons and won a prompt welcome from its members.

Churchill gave no explanation for the surprising move, a recognition of Australia's own critical role in the war. But sections of the British press have expressed alarm over Australia's recent tendency to carry her troubles to Washington rather than to London.

STIFFEN CHARGE

Police Cite Driver In Death of Cleveland Man.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Alfred Zucker, 65, was dead today after being struck by an automobile driven by a 30-year-old salesman whom police charged with intoxication and then with manslaughter.

The salesman, Edward Fink, had been arrested twice since 1928 and had, according to Police Sgt. Victor Webber, been convicted on a traffic violation and a robbery charge.

RATIONS CUT

LONDON — (AP) — Reuters said the Berlin radio was heard today announcing that food rations are to be reduced in Germany beginning April 4.

Allied Planes Blast Cruiser, Timor Airfield

American Bombers Join Counter-Assault On Invasion Forces as Nipponese Jungle Troops Hack Way Toward Port Moresby Objective.

(By United Press)

CANBERRA — Japanese jungle troops hacked their way southward across New Guinea island for an invasion thrust against Australia today despite heavy new Allied aerial blows that blasted a 10,000-ton enemy cruiser and possibly eight other ships off New Britain island.

American heavy bombers, presumably including flying fortresses, led counter-attacks against the Japanese-held Koepang airdrome on Timor island and enemy vessels concentrated around New Britain. Three ships, including the cruiser and two big vessels, were known damaged while six more were believed hit or damaged.

(This raised the toll of Japanese ships sunk or damaged in the islands north of Australia to 26 definite and 32 possible, including 13 warships.)

The attacks on Japanese ships off New Britain on Wednesday were disclosed in a war communique at a time when the United Nations forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur were intensifying the struggle for air supremacy and for invasion bases.

Developments included:

A new raid by Japanese heavy bombers which made three runs over Port Moresby but apparently failed to cause serious damage because of strong defensive fire.

A dispatch from Port Moresby saying that Japanese forces were cutting 110 miles across the rugged jungles of New Guinea in an effort to flank that vital invasion port by land Australian troops were reported braced to defend the port.

A raid by American and Australian heavy bombers on the Japanese held airdrome at Koepang on Timor island, where big fires were started. (A radio Berlin report said Tokyo acknowledged that Dutch troops were still fighting in the Timor mountains after a "battle of some violence" on that island.)

A renewal of Japanese aerial activity over the Torres straits on Wednesday, including reconnaissance flights near Cape York, the northernmost tip of Australia.

(An Australian broadcast heard by CBS reported a new Japanese raid today on Port Darwin, main Allied base on the north coast where some American forces have been stationed.)

Additional Japanese forces were being landed on New Guinea island, especially in the Salamaua area on the north coast, apparently in an effort to speed up preparations for an invasion of Australia before arrival of additional American forces.

The Japanese drive through New Guinea was in considerable force and followed the arc of the Markham valley from the enemy landing point at Lae on the Huon gulf toward the Gulf of Papua, on the Port Moresby side of the island about 350 miles from the Australian coast.

They were driving across a 110-mile stretch of land, one of the few passable routes in New Guinea, and if they continued they would reach the coast at a point some 100 miles north of Port Moresby, always regarded a vital Japanese objective because it is a logical base from which to attempt an invasion of Australia.

It was indicated that the Japanese had made considerable progress. The Port Moresby dispatch said it was assumed they would soon be in contact with the Australian forces in the island.

The Allied war planes, believed to include flying fortresses, flew more than 750 miles from a secret base in northern Australia to blast the enemy invasion fleet off New

PURPOSE: MacArthur Seeks to Smash Japan, Aid Philippines

(By Associated Press)

MELBOURNE, Australia—General Douglas MacArthur made it plain today that his paramount purpose as supreme commander in the southwest Pacific is to build as rapidly as possible an offensive force to smash Japan and at the same time relieve his beleaguered troops in the Philippines.

MacArthur outlined his purpose to his old friend and former war department associate, Brigadier General Patrick Jay Hurley, now minister to New Zealand, who told a press conference:

"General MacArthur breathes the very spirit of victory. He specifically stated that he still is in command of the Philippine situation and has the utmost confidence that he will again be back on Filipino soil."

Hurley said he found the hero of the Philippine campaign in excellent health.

"I am not authorized to disclose details of the general's plans as they must be regarded as military secrets.

"I am authorized, however, to state that his plans are being put into operation and that he is approaching this new task with the same serene confidence and efficient aggressiveness that have characterized his brilliant career

PLOT: Reveal IRA Attempt to Get Data on AEF In Ireland

(By United Press)

BELFAST—A special court today disclosed an Irish Republican army plot to determine the number and disposition of American and other armed forces in Northern Ireland. It was believed the plot may have been Nazi-inspired.

The disclosure was made when Henry Lunberg, 42, restaurant car attendant on a Dublin-Belfast train, was charged with carrying letters from Irish Republican army agents in Dublin to other army agents in Belfast.

One of the letters, dated Feb. 6 and addressed from general headquarters of the army's intelligence department in Dublin to the intelligence division of the army's northern command, requested information regarding the number of American and British troops in Northern Ireland, the number of war factories, detailed plans of the factories and information as to the strength and disposition of protective forces.

The letter acknowledged receipt of a previous report and asked for an immediate report on (1) the number of American troops that had arrived in Northern Ireland, (2) the reaction of the nationalist element and the populace regarding their arrival and (3) the prospect for making "friendly contacts" with these troops.

The letter was addressed to a person identified only as "Dil" and urged that the report be made "immediately."

JAPS ADVANCE ON MORESBY IN NEW GUINEA

Allied Planes Blast Heavy Cruiser, Attack Other Ships and Airdrome.

In addition to hitting the cruiser and two other ships, they scored near misses, certain to have done heavy damage, on at least two and probably four other large ships.

A direct bomb hit was scored on the stern of the Japanese cruiser and the plane crews saw a column of smoke rising from it as they left.

In this daylight raid, a direct challenge to the Japanese air force stationed at Rabaul, the Allied planes reconnoitered widely over the Bismarck islands, Prime Minister John Curtin announced.

Public enthusiasm over the arrival in Australia of General MacArthur to assume the Allied southwest Pacific command, and the constant arrival of United States troops and munitions, continued, but no doubt was felt by United States or Australian military leaders that they faced an early and dangerous Japanese challenge.

Gen. MacArthur was sent to do the biggest job which could be found for him.

MacArthur held the Japanese in the Philippines while they overran Malaya, Singapore and the Netherlands East Indies, and it is the hope and belief here that he will hold them here.

U. S. Officer Runs Two Chinese Armies

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The war department announced today that Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell of the United States army had been put in command of the Fifth and Sixth Chinese armies operating with British forces defending Burma against the Japanese.

The action was taken by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China, a brief communique said.

Gen. Stilwell went to China a few weeks ago and served initially as Chiang's chief of staff.

The communique, No. 151, said, "There is nothing to report from other areas."

Fighting Flares Again In Burma

NEW DELHI, India—(INS)—Fierce fighting was reported today to have flared up on the Burma front as defending forces sought to halt the main Japanese thrusts along the Irrawaddy river and on the highways leading north to Prome and Mandalay.

Earlier reports told of a clash between British and Japanese forces south of Kanyutkwin, where the Japanese evidently were aiming a spearhead at Toungoo, 40 miles north.

The new clashes followed raids by American volunteer airmen on the Jap air base at Moulmein, where 15 planes were set on fire and others were damaged.

Aussie Commander To Aid M'Arthur

CANBERRA —(INS)— The relations of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, supreme commander of United Nations forces in the southwest Pacific, and Lieut. Gen. George H. Brett, deputy supreme commander, with the Australian forces defending the commonwealth were officially defined today.

In accordance with this definition, an Australian leader will command the Australian army forces, working in close co-ordination under Generalissimo MacArthur.

Lieut. Gen. Brett will control the United Nations air forces with the Australian commander of the RAAF.

URUGUAY HOLDS SHIPS IN PORT

Decides On Move After Torpedoing Of Freighter, Montevideo.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay —(AP)—As a result of the torpedoing of the freighter Montevideo, termed by Foreign Minister Alberto Guani a "flagrant and brutal" violation of international law, the government has decided to hold all Uruguayan ships in port pending arrangements for them to travel in convoy.

The situation created by the sinking, which has stirred violent anti-Axis demonstrations here, still was under discussion by the cabinet.

AIDS ESCAPE

But How Was Good Samaritan to Know That Man Was Robber.

Indianapolis—(AP)—A passersby saw a Negro tumble down steps from the Saengerbund club, a block from police headquarters, and fall into a hallway of the building. He helped the man to his feet and the man ran on outside.

Then Jack Federspill, 53, club bartender, came along and told the good samaritan the Negro had just held him up and robbed the safe of $600.

not expected to be mailed to the men in the 20-21 and 35-44 age groups before April 10.

In another step toward complete mobilization of America's manpower, national draft officials today planned to issue an order soon calling for registration of the nation's 18 and 19-year-old youths and men from 45 to 64, inclusive, during the last week of April.

At the same time, it was learned that arrangements are being made to rush legislation through congress to provide for military training for the 18 and 19 year olds so that they can be immediately inducted into the army when they reach their 20th birthday.

All men 18 to 64 inclusive are covered under the draft act. Men from 21 to 34, inclusive, and youths 20, and men from 34 to 44 inclusive, already have been registered. The third draft lottery covering the 9,000,000 men 20 years old and men from 34 to 44 was held Tuesday night.

In launching it, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national draft director, indicated strongly that workers would be conscripted for war industries. He said flatly that the job of keeping men at work turning out planes and ships and tanks and guns would be given preference even over furnishing men for the military services.

A careful checkup revealed that Hershey was making plans for complete mobilization of the United States' manpower. Conscription of workers for war plants may start within 60 days, if present plans are carried out.

Under the proposal, workers in vital war industries would be frozen in their jobs at prevailing wage levels for the duration of the war. If they are of military age and refuse to accept the order, they will be drafted into the army at $21 a month and put back into the same job subject to military control.

Meanwhile, a move to mobilize the nation's woman power was furthered by introduction of a bill by Rep. Baldwin (R., N. Y.), proposing registration of all women between the ages of 18 and 64 to determine their capacity and availability for civilian and military service.

HEARS ARGUMENT ON DISTRICTING

Supreme Court Listens To Herbert On New Senate Districts.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The state supreme court heard arguments today in the suit of Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert to block redistricting of the state's senatorial districts as ordered last year by the state apportionment board.

Herbert contends the board violated constitutional requirements in the provisions of its plan based on the 1940 census and that part of an existing district may not be taken away unless counties remaining in the district have sufficient population to constitute a separate district.

to the airport so that it could take off.

Major Miller last night stayed at the barracks at the port.

Meanwhile, engineers from Patterson field cleared away the wreckage of the new pursuit planes that crashed and burned east of Lima as the air corps sought an explanation of the fatal accidents.

Officials said that one of the planes had not been flown more than three hours.

The army ferry command at Detroit said the victims were Second Lieut. Edward H. Saunders, 26, flight leader, Lake Village, Ark.; Second Lieut. Eugene H. Anderson, 23, Kewaunee, Ill.; and Second Lieut. Earl A. Houser, 22, Pesotum, Ill., and Second Lieut. A. J. Kennedy, 26, Oklahoma City, Okla.

The planes left the Wayne county airport, Detroit, for an official flight "south."

The bodies could not be removed from the wreckage for several hours because of the heat. Three of the planes crashed in fields and the other in a woods. Two dove into the ground and two seemed to crash flat.

Kennedy was believed to have tried to parachute to safety. His body and parachute were found 40 feet from one plane on the Byron Hefner farm. The others died in their planes.

Hergatt and two other companions, Fred Urschel, 16, of 270 West First street, and Norman Hildebrand, 17, of 398 South Diamond street, told authorities that Borden was on the other side of the auto and stepped toward the back of the car just as Hergatt fired. Dr. L. B. McCullough, Richland county coroner, gave a verdict of accidental death.

SOLDIER KILLED AT INDIANTOWN

Several Ohioans Reported Hurt In Bus Collision.

INDIANTOWN GAP, Pa.—(AP)—Private Frank Wnoroski of Canton, O., was killed and four other soldiers were seriously injured early today when a bus carrying 27 servicemen collided with a coal truck three miles west of here on State Route 72.

Military authorities said the injured were: Private Paul Latella of Philadelphia, Private Henry Szrembek of Cleveland, Sergeant Robert Hause, Springfield, and Private Alva W. Pyle of New York city.

Several other soldiers and the driver of the bus were treated for cuts and bruises at the post hospital.

Retired Officer Suggests Oil Be Shipped Via Mississippi.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. —(AP)— A suggestion that oil be transported to the east by way of the Mississippi river rather than the submarine infested Atlantic was advanced today by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, retired, former chief of U. S. army engineers.

In a letter to Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, General Brown proposed construction of barges and towboats to ship oil to American production centers via the Mississippi and its tributaries.

SENATORS SAY BILL WILL PASS

Predict Majority for Measure to Form Women's Corps

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Clear sailing was indicated in the senate today for house-approved legislation authorizing the creation of a women's army auxiliary corps of 150,000 volunteer members.

Democratic leaders predicted that the bill would pass the senate by an easy majority whenever called up. The house approved it almost three to one.

The measure, which has the approval of the war department, authorizes organization of a uniformed corps of women to work at army rates of pay in air raid warning centers and in many other civilian jobs now held by men. The women would live in barracks under army discipline.

"Those boys drove themselves to the very limit," he said. "Our doctors actually had to pull some of them off the planes."

M'Arthurs Used Torpedoboats, Report

NEW YORK —(AP)— Small but fast motor torpedoboats carried General Douglas MacArthur, his wife and child, and a small group of aides on the perilous first leg of their journey from Batan peninsula to Australia, according to a copyrighted Melbourne dispatch published today by the New York Herald Tribune.

The correspondent, Allen Raymond, learned that the MacArthur party left Batan by night on March 11 and traveled south along the coast of the Philippine islands for two nights, hiding in bayous during the daylight hours, to reach the rendezvous with the big planes which carried the group to Australia.

Three days of the one-week journey was spent in waiting for the planes, it was said.

At times the little boats were pounded by heavy seas, Raymond learned. He quoted a member of the party as saying: "We took a terrific pounding—in spots it was like riding in one of those outboard-motor racing boats."

The point of their arrival in Australia, Raymond wrote, naturally is secret, but the planes which landed the MacArthurs and their party in Australia March 17 kept clear of Darwin, northern Australia port which has been under repeated air attack.

ASKS APPROVAL OF LABOR BILL

Senator Charges Workers Pay Tribute To Work, Wants Limit on War Profit.

Treasury Henry Morgenthau told a press conference that a proposal to pay all overtime in defense bonds in war factories was being studied but indicated it would be at least July before it was put into operation, if adopted.

Smith bitterly assailed what he termed "a closed shop agreement between Sidney Hillman and the AFL construction workers."

"It shocked me so much I haven't recovered yet," the lanky Virginian declared.

"It would be a waste of time for me to tell you gentlemen what you already know—of the millions of man hours lost, of the thousands of planes, tanks and guns that have been lost because of labor disputes."

Although members of the house naval committee, especially those from the south, continued to report that they were swamped with mail from the "folks back home" urging favorable action, most observers today believed the bill has less than an even chance of enactment after the outspoken opposition.

Meanwhile the labor situation was attacked from another front with Rep. Hoffman (R) Mich., urging passage of his bill to provide that men in the armed forces in combat areas receive pay "equal to the average paid to members of labor unions employed in industries."

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1942.

Still time to get your auto license plates before the rush starts.

It was different back in the horse-and-buggy days—few people had a horse and buggy.

Nothing much has been heard recently about the "parasites" in Washington as the subject may have been rather embarrassing to some folks on the federal payroll.

Will 40-Hour Week Win the War?

WHATEVER else may be in doubt, majority public opinion in the United States leans strongly to the view that a war which threatens the destruction of this country, calls millions of men into military service, costs billions of dollars and demands sacrifices of everyone, should not be made the occasion for financially benefiting anybody—either in profits, wages, higher farm prices, or whatever form of opportunity may open.

Public interest is now centering on "the 40-hour week," which has come to be regarded as a peace-time maximum for work at regular pay, with time-and-a-half for overtime and double pay for Sunday and holiday work.

Whatever special observance may be given Sundays and holidays in times of peace, the realities of war make it impossible to differentiate between days in the matter of industrial production to meet military needs and extra pay for work on any particular day—within the 40-hour weekly total—has the appearance of penalizing the taxpaying public for the benefit of a comparatively few persons who seem to think that a war can be successfully conducted under rules adapted to peace-time privileges.

The real question, as it should be considered by President Roosevelt, congress and all American citizens, is whether an all-out war effort, including adequate man power and maximum production of war equipment and supplies, can be attained within a 40-hour individual work week, or whether it will eventually require 48, or 60, or even 84 hours a week of work to win the war—with or without extra compensation.

For, in the countries that have already been overrun by the Axis powers, no hours of work within physical endurance would be considered too arduous to restore the human freedom which the people of the United States are now fighting to preserve.

Buy To Meet Normal Needs

ONE of the things that seems to need explaining is the extent to which individual and family buying of civilian commodities, including merchandise in which the output is not restricted, should continue for the duration of war.

Higher taxes, emphasis on purchase of defense bonds and stamps, and requirement for contributions to various causes, have a tendency to confuse some people as to what they should do about buying wearing apparel, furniture, and other personal and home needs, in the customary way.

No problem is involved in such items as new automobiles, tires, mechanical refrigerators, and the like, production of which has been stopped or greatly reduced. The answer in such cases is to get along with what you have and not to go into competition with others in an effort to buy scarce merchandise—as this is one of the chief causes for inflationary price rises.

With other merchandise, however, where there is no scarcity or unjustified price increases, best advice to consumers is to buy normally to meet reasonable needs—and buy of local merchants, so that they may also be in position to meet the extra burdens that war places upon all of us.

Insofar as possible avoid buying articles which have been made scarce by restricted production. Otherwise buy normally—do not purchase in excessive quantities and DO NOT HOARD.

Death Ends Valuable Service

ASIDE from the loss of a capable and deeply interested medical director of the Richland county tuberculosis sanatorium, the death of Dr. Lincoln Fisher removes from this community a man who at all times conformed his life, habits and conduct to the best traditions and principles of his profession.

In his contacts with professional associates, friends and acquaintances Dr. Fisher reflected the high character and fine attributes that marked his entire career. It was only natural that all who were privileged to make his acquaintance, during his few years of residence in Mansfield, learned quickly to respect and admire him, and to have confidence in his knowledge and skill in the field to which he devoted special attention.

Friendliness and consideration for others were such natural traits of Dr. Fisher that it is little wonder he made friends readily and that his death brought a feeling of sadness and deep regret to all who knew him.

Bicycles for Father and Mother

THE AUTOMOBILE industry grew out of the bicycle industry and is now returning to it.

New autos are banned at present, except in very special cases. Tires wear out, gas grows scarcer, and children's cars go off production, but there will still be bikes for Father to ride to work. Maybe for Mother, too, inasmuch as she tends more and more to take Father's place as he goes off to the training camp.

Cycling fathers, however, don't have it all their own way. They are subject to lamentable restrictions. Their bikes must be "stripped of all nonessential gadgets and bright work." Many a dad, recovering his lost youth, will feel mournful about that.

An Accidental Shot

THE TRAGIC death of a Mansfield high school boy, as the result of accidental shooting by a companion, is one of those apparently unavoidable occurrences which bring sorrow into the community from time to time.

Warnings, based on observation and experience, count for little in the matter of keeping dangerous firearms out of the hands of children who are unconscious of the hazards involved, and occasional fatal results necessarily ensue.

The sympathy that is extended to members of the family of the youthful victim of this tragedy may also be made to include the boy's companions on the fateful trip, for to them the experience will remain as a vivid and painful memory throughout their lives.

WHILE HE DEFENDS THEM

Labor Troubles Disturb Congress

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Congress is getting restive again about labor troubles affecting the war effort. This feeling on Capitol Hill reached a dangerous peak some months back, but was quieted down, not without strenuous efforts, by the administration and the labor union leaders.

It is mounting again, and this time it will be much harder for President Roosevelt and the labor leaders to handle. For one thing the very points which were used so effectively in the last "crisis" have been proved unwarranted. Even Secretary of Labor Perkins admitted that there were more strikes affecting the war effort in February than there were in January. She insisted that most of these did not have the approval of national labor organizations.

Unintentionally, perhaps, she thus presented an excellent argument to members of congress most anxious to do something about this situation. This is simply that if the national leaders of labor cannot control their followings in a national crisis then it is necessary for the government to take over this necessary function.

BUT that is only part of the picture. There are two arguments being used by the representatives of labor, and their close friends, which do not find much approval among the lawmakers. One of these, most frequently voiced by Mrs. Roosevelt, is that labor must "keep its gains."

That argument does not sit very well with congressmen most of whose constituents are combatting the rising cost of living and higher taxes, not to mention those who have gone into the armed services, without any such "gains." They do not see why one group of labor, already way ahead of the rest of labor in its financial rewards, in working conditions, and hours of toil, should be protected from any sacrifice necessary for the war effort.

Skilled labor, in terrific demand BECAUSE of the war, should not expect ALL of the sacrifices to be made by people who are NOT profiting from the war, many congressmen are saying.

Then there is the question of double pay for Sunday work, this touches a sore point for two reasons. The first is that it is vitally necessary to use every machine tool every possible hour, machine tools still being one of the bottlenecks of war production, and likely to remain so for the duration.

Obviously there will be continuous improvement in design of planes, cannon, bombs, tanks, small arms, etc. and each improvement will result in changes which require machine tool activity.

Therefore, these congressmen reason, no handicap should be put upon seven-day-a-week, three-shift-a-day work in every plant engaged in war production.

THE SECOND reason is power. The government has been crying, "Wolf, wolf" about a power shortage every since it began clamoring for hydroelectric appropriations. It may or may not have been true when the first cries were made. That is a question which is debatable. But there is no doubt about it now that the war effort has come.

It so happens that it is not practical to save up electric power for peak loads at certain hours. That would require prodigious storage battery facilities, and we are short of some of the materials needed for batteries. So the sensible thing to do would be to utilize what power we have every hour in the twenty-four, and every day in the week.

This is especially true, of course, with water power, but it is also true of steam power. We do not have enough turbines. We need all the turbines our facilities can turn out. They are vital in ships, for instance.

This is still only part of it, but it gives an idea of how many congressmen are thinking.

Health and Diet

Drinking Water, In Health and Disease

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

OUR NEED for water is very delicately regulated by one of the most sensitive sensations of the body, thirst. Thirst tells us how much water we ought to take in, to the finest decimal point. People write and ask me whether it does any harm to drink too much water—more than thirst demands—and other people say that they are practically never thirsty.

Well, in answer to the last, it is of course true that all our food contains water, some of it as much as 95%, and certain people use this food-water very avidly so that the demand for water in a pure form for them is not very great. Also the milk and coffee and other beverages we consume at the table are largely water.

So far as drinking water after thirst has been quenched, it is probable that no one is harmed by an excess of water in the body. Experiments made by Dr. Rowntree years ago show that the body gets rid of excessive water and every living cell protects itself from an exess of water content. They sap up water when they are depleted, but the body cells do not store water. When water is forced, however, there ensues a condition known as water intoxication which is practically always fatal.

The fact that we are dependent upon a constant renewal of our supply of water is what makes the problem of feeding an army and keeping it supplied with water so difficult on the long marches and under battle conditions. Water cannot be concentrated. The soldier has to carry his full load.

There are a great many peculiar things about water, however, which we do not understand. A gentleman writes me, for instance, that he is subject to migrane headaches and that when he knows one is coming on, he refuses to drink any water at all for a day or two and can often ward off a headache, preventing it altogether. This is true, according to him, with a number of chronic conditions and other forms of headache.

The only exception I know to the statement that the body cells do not store water is seen in a condition of reducing for obesity and overweight. People on a reduction diet go along for several days, usually about ten, without loss of weight and then suddenly begin to lose rapidly.

This has been ascribed to water retention that occurs in the fat cells. The fat may be removed but the water remains, so the person loses no weight. Suddenly the cells let go their excess water and a sudden falling off of weight occurs. So in a reduction cure do not be disappointed if you don't lose much the first few days.

Timely Editorial

Dues Come First.

"Production—uninterrupted production" is what President Roosevelt in his fireside speech requested of industry and labor as their contribution toward winning the war.

But on the very day the president spoke the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee threw a picket line around a plant in Granite City, Ill. While work was thus halted on armor being produced for tanks and gun mounts, the union officials went about collecting dues from delinquent members.

That's all there was to it—no dispute over hours or wages; no complaint of unfair working conditions; just a stoppage for the purpose of collecting money for the union treasury. Production? Uninterrupted production? Yes, after the dues have been collected. —New York Sun.

Must Control Wages and Profits To Halt Inflation, Baruch Warns

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Inside fact about the current quarrel over inflation and the farm bill is that sage old Bernie Baruch long ago warned the president, Leon Henderson and the inner circle that they could not stop inflation if they put the brake only on prices.

"Price-fixing is like a four-legged chair," Baruch warned them. "It won't stand on two legs or even three."

There is no use regulating consumer prices, he said, unless you also regulate profits, also wages, also farm prices. If one of them gets out of hand, the others will too.

Baruch, who was head of the War Industries Board in the last war, has been harping on this point for months. He urged congress more than a year ago to adopt a very high excess profits tax to take away all the war profits from industry; and at the same time he urged the president to clamp down on wages as well as prices.

The president actually got a little irritated at Baruch's pounding away on this theme. Today, however, chief resentment of the farm belt is not so much against Roosevelt's urging that farm prices be kept down, but over the fact that labor's income has skyrocketed while the farmer's hasn't. Furthermore, the farmer complains that he has to pay a lot more for his labor—when he can get it at all—but he can't increase his farm prices proportionately.

British Red Tape.

THERE'LL always be an England," but U. S. fliers now trying to save India are wondering why. British officials in India don't want them to enter India until 31 days after they have taken yellow fever shots. By that time the Japanese, who don't have to observe the 31 day rule, may obviate the need of U. S. fliers going to India at all.

Capital Chaff.

TO RUMORS that Ambassador John Winant will take Miss Perkins' place as secretary of labor, he says: "Why have all the headaches of a cabinet job?" He indicates that the job of being ambassador to Great Britain is much more interesting. However, rumors persist that Winant will remain in Washington and that Secretary of War Stimson will replace him in London. . . . The blunt report on disastrous losses at Java is interpreted by some as paving the way for Frank Knox's exit as secretary of the navy. . . . Miss Marguerite LeHand, longtime secretary of the president, is back in the White House after eight months illness, part of the time at Warm Springs. If the people around Roosevelt break down, imagine what kind of a constitution he has. . . . Sumner Welles used to telephone the president from Rio de Janeiro at around midnight. That means 2 a. m. Washington time. The president was still working.

Housing Problems.

CONGRESSIONAL investigators probing into defense housing conditions the other day ran across some interesting data regarding Charles F. Palmer, exco-ordinator of defense housing.

They discovered that in 1935, Palmer had almost been asked to resign from a local housing project in Atlanta, Georgia, because he split architects' and real estate commissions of $60,000.

Palmer was not then employed by the government, and the split commissions were to compensate him for work he had done in promoting a low cost housing project, later completed by the Public Works Administration.

However, the PWA division of investigation, after probing the matter, "recommended that the housing division exercise caution to see that split commissions do not prevail on any housing project in the future."

Also, A. R. Clas, director of PWA housing, reported as follows regarding Palmer:

"The report does not disclose any dishonesty on Mr. Palmer's part . . . but it has cast a doubt in my mind of Mr. Palmer's unselfish interest in the projects, and thus I am not sure of his motives in urging local control of the management.

"I have felt for some time that the committee (in Atlanta) as a result of Mr. Palmer's activities has been making no effort to reconcile the difficulties between the city and the government, but rather using the objections as a club to induce the government to turn over such profits to it. . . . I do not believe it is desirable to ask for Mr. Palmer's resignation at this time, although I feel the committee would function better without him."

Most significant fact is that despite this, the recognized Public Works Administration actually promoted Palmer to the vitally important job of defense housing co-ordinator where he has served until recently. Finally, however, he was eased out of the housing picture by a trip to inspect housing in England.

Ambassador to Russia.

FRIENDS are predicting that Admiral William H. Standley will do an outstanding job as U. S. ambassador to Russia, but he still can't believe it's true that he is going there.

"Russia is about the last place I figured the president would send me," he confides to friends, "because of something that happened back in 1934."

Standley was then chief of naval operations and caused a storm of isolationist protests by ordering fleet maneuvers in the far Pacific. Letters poured in on congress and the navy department, charging that the maneuvers would be an "affront" to Russia and Japan.

"A number of the leters lambasted me as anti-Russian," Standley recalls, "and there was so much agitation that I finally withdrew the order. However, it seemed logical to me to hold maneuvers and work out tactical problems in waters in which we might have to fight some day."

How right his judgment was has been amply proved by recent events. Also, if there were any lingering doubts about Standley's friendship for Russia, they were dispelled last year when he went there as a member of the U. S. lend-lease mission.

"A week after we arrived," Standley relates, "and while a lot of people were selling Russia short, I predicted that its army would not quit fighting and would eventually lick the Nazis. I'm prouder of that prediction than any I ever made."

Merry-Go-Round.

INSIDE word is that by fall men's clothing will be up 20 to 30 per cent over current prices. . . . It will take more than one billion pounds of food to feed the U. S. navy this year. Like the U. S. army, the navy is the best fed in the world. . . . Plans are under way to increase iron ore production this year to 88,000,000 tons. This is ten per cent more than in 1940, which was the second highest production period in U. S. history. . . . A postcard from a mid-Western town addressed to "George Washington, Washington, D. C.", inquiring about the color of the first president's hair was forwarded by postal officials to Representative Sol Bloom of N. Y., leading Washington authority in the capital.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—What's a "liver head"? That's a bum study, a guy who can't learn his lines. What's a "third banana"? That's a stooge comic who takes the falls. What are "jerks"? That's the audience. . . . All this is burlesque talk, and in the light of what has happened in recent weeks to burlesque I thought you'd want to know.

Burlesque, you know, is "dead." But you will pardon me if I seem unable to take its demise too seriously. I remember that the same corpse was laid out on the same cooling board by Mr. Paul Moss, the commissioner of licenses, and his adherents, back in 1937.

Of course, Mr. Moss was a little premature. Within a few weeks the same old G-strings were tantalizing the same old bald heads back at the same old peanut stands, and if they operated under a camouflaged name, well, that didn't matter to the bum in the third row.

NOW the same wonderful witch hunt has been held all over again. I see in the papers that the old burly houses are padlocked, and that those "cesspools of indecency" have been banished at last. Maybe so, but I doubt it. Burlesque is the oldest form of organized show business on earth. When it adopted, or rather when it began to publicize its strip tease dancers a few years ago it ran into trouble.

Girls in burlesque houses began to take off their clothes bit by frill, and when the people began to talk about it, the censorship boys began to act. Therefore, it's against the law for a dancer in a burlesque theater to take off her clothes while on the stage in front of an audience, but it's perfectly legal and okay in a nightclub, many of whose whole system of entertainment is predicated on the strip.

YOU will hear plenty of strong language since Mr. Moss refused to renew licenses of operation to the burlesque houses on Broadway, pro and con. The antis have labeled burlesque halls "breeders of prostitutes." In the back stage dressing rooms Mr. Moss's name has been changed to "Dr. Mud." Playwrights, critics, dramatists, actors of the legitimate theater have sided almost unanimously with the burlesque people. They have denounced it as censorship, any form of which is anathema. But the edict stands and those horrid burlesquers can't do their shimmies or tell their "cacky" stories any more. Cacky means smutty.

But, don't you cry. It won't be long before "Moonlight and Roses" will take its place on some midtown stage. "Moonlight and Roses" is just another way of saying "Follies Brassiere" or "Anatomy and Cleopatra." That's the way burlesque titles go, those and "Behind Red Tights," and "A Broad at Home." They may not look that way on the marquees. . . . They may seem reminiscent of "Vanities" and "Crazy Quilt." But, down deep, it'll be the same. A rose by any other name, you know.

A Farmer's Diary

First Meadow Lark

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TEN days ago I saw a lonely lark fly from the brink of Honey Creek down into the withered grass of the meadow pasture. The wind was raw. Sleet and snow were in the air. The thick turf beneath was frozen. No sunshine or pleasant skies greeted that solitary early comer.

One swallow does not make a summer, nor does the first lark make the spring. Yet that single flight was like a bit of promise of plenteous showers, south winds blowing, early wild flowers of the woods.

Strong heart this first little bird must have, to brave cold and famine in order to spy out the land for the rest of his kind who follow. Like the dove of old, sent out from the window of the ark, the fact that the lark came and remained was a good omen.

I saw it drop into a hollow of the field. Its drab upper coat and greenish breast below, blended so completely with the upper withered grass and the hint of greening blades beneath, that the bird was lost to view before my eyes. There in that cold, damp, cheerless bed, screened from the cruel wind by only a thinly woven thatch of last year's stubble, this bird would find a boon of rest and sleep for the night. "Step lightly, March," I repeated to myself, and hoped no ice storm would come to cover the nightly layer with snow and smother my little friend.

But now, larks are everywhere. The clean white belt shows beautifully on the spreading tail, in flight. They mount upon old fence stakes, posts, or wires along the roadside. Each morning their tribe increases until they rival the red wing blackbirds among the cattails of the swamp or the song sparrows among the slender willows of the thicket.

This evening just at twilight I heard that sweet liquid note rise from the meadow, flow quivering from the highest stake and bathe the painted western sunlit hill in a welcome spring song.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, MARCH 19, 1942.

Still time to get your auto license plates before the rush starts.

It was different back in the horse-and-buggy days—few people had a horse and buggy.

Nothing much has been heard recently about the "parasites" in Washington as the subject may have been rather embarrassing to some folks on the federal payroll.

Will 40-Hour Week Win the War?

WHATEVER else may be in doubt, majority public opinion in the United States leans strongly to the view that a war which threatens the destruction of this country, calls millions of men into military service, costs billions of dollars and demands sacrifices of everyone, should not be made the occasion for financially benefiting anybody—either in profits, wages, higher farm prices, or whatever form of opportunity may open.

Public interest is now centering on "the 40-hour week," which has come to be regarded as a peace-time maximum for work at regular pay, with time-and-a-half for overtime and double pay for Sunday and holiday work.

Whatever special observance may be given Sundays and holidays in times of peace, the realities of war make it impossible to differentiate between days in the matter of industrial production to meet military needs and extra pay for work on any particular day—within the 40-hour weekly total—has the appearance of penalizing the taxpaying public for the benefit of a comparatively few persons who seem to think that a war can be successfully conducted under rules adapted to peace-time privileges.

The real question, as it should be considered by President Roosevelt, congress and all American citizens, is whether an all-out war effort, including adequate man power and maximum production of war equipment and supplies, can be attained within a 40-hour individual work week, or whether it will eventually require 48, or 60, or even 84 hours a week of work to win the war—with or without extra compensation.

For, in the countries that have already been overrun by the Axis powers, no hours of work within physical endurance would be considered too arduous to restore the human freedom which the people of the United States are now fighting to preserve.

Buy To Meet Normal Needs

ONE of the things that seems to need explaining is the extent to which individual and family buying of civilian commodities, including merchandise in which the output is not restricted, should continue for the duration of war.

Higher taxes, emphasis on purchase of defense bonds and stamps, and requirement for contributions to various causes, have a tendency to confuse some people as to what they should do about buying wearing apparel, furniture, and other personal and home needs, in the customary way.

No problem is involved in such items as new automobiles, tires, mechanical refrigerators, and the like, production of which has been stopped or greatly reduced. The answer in such cases is to get along with what you have and not to go into competition with others in an effort to buy scarce merchandise—as this is one of the chief causes for inflationary price rises.

With other merchandise, however, where there is no scarcity or unjustified price increases, best advice to consumers is to buy normally to meet reasonable needs—and buy of local merchants, so that they may also be in position to meet the extra burdens that war places upon all of us.

Insofar as possible avoid buying articles which have been made scarce by restricted production. Otherwise buy normally—do not purchase in excessive quantities and DO NOT HOARD.

Death Ends Valuable Service

ASIDE from the loss of a capable and deeply interested medical director of the Richland county tuberculosis sanatorium, the death of Dr. Lincoln Fisher removes from this community a man who at all times conformed his life, habits and conduct to the best traditions and principles of his profession.

In his contacts with professional associates, friends and acquaintances Dr. Fisher reflected the high character and fine attributes that marked his entire career. It was only natural that all who were privileged to make his acquaintance, during his few years of residence in Mansfield, learned quickly to respect and admire him, and to have confidence in his knowledge and skill in the field to which he devoted special attention.

Friendliness and consideration for others were such natural traits of Dr. Fisher that it is little wonder he made friends readily and that his death brought a feeling of sadness and deep regret to all who knew him.

Bicycles for Father and Mother

THE AUTOMOBILE industry grew out of the bicycle industry and is now returning to it.

New autos are banned at present, except in very special cases. Tires wear out, gas grows scarcer, and children's cars go off production, but there will still be bikes for Father to ride to work. Maybe for Mother, too, inasmuch as she tends more and more to take Father's place as he goes off to the training camp.

Cycling fathers, however, don't have it all their own way. They are subject to lamentable restrictions. Their bikes must be "stripped of all nonessential gadgets and bright work." Many a dad, recovering his lost youth, will feel mournful about that.

An Accidental Shot

THE TRAGIC death of a Mansfield high school boy, as the result of accidental shooting by a companion, is one of those apparently unavoidable occurrences which bring sorrow into the community from time to time.

Warnings, based on observation and experience, count for little in the matter of keeping dangerous firearms out of the hands of children who are unconscious of the hazards involved, and occasional fatal results necessarily ensue.

The sympathy that is extended to members of the family of the youthful victim of this tragedy may also be made to include the boy's companions on the fateful trip, for to them the experience will remain as a vivid and painful memory throughout their lives.

Labor Troubles Disturb Congress

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Congress is getting restive again about labor troubles affecting the war effort. This feeling on Capitol Hill reached a dangerous peak some months back, but was quieted down, not without strenuous efforts, by the administration and the labor union leaders.

It is mounting again, and this time it will be much harder for President Roosevelt and the labor leaders to handle. For one thing the very points which were used so effectively in the last "crisis" have been proved unwarranted. Even Secretary of Labor Perkins admitted that there were more strikes affecting the war effort in February than there were in January. She insisted that most of these did not have the approval of national labor organizations.

Unintentionally, perhaps, she thus presented an excellent argument to members of congress most anxious to do something about this situation. This is simply that if the national leaders of labor cannot control their followings in a national crisis then it is necessary for the government to take over this necessary function.

BUT that is only part of the picture. There are two arguments being used by the representatives of labor, and their close friends, which do not find much approval among the lawmakers. One of these, most frequently voiced by Mrs. Roosevelt, is that labor must "keep its gains."

That argument does not sit very well with congressmen most of whose constituents are combatting the rising cost of living and higher taxes, not to mention those who have gone into the armed services, without any such "gains." They do not see why one group of labor, already way ahead of the rest of labor in its financial rewards, in working conditions, and hours of toil, should be protected from any sacrifice necessary for the war effort.

Skilled labor, in terrific demand BECAUSE of the war, should not expect ALL of the sacrifices to be made by people who are NOT profiting from the war, many congressmen are saying.

Then there is the question of double pay for Sunday work, this touches a sore point for two reasons. The first is that it is vitally necessary to use every machine tool every possible hour, machine tools still being one of the bottlenecks of war production, and likely to remain so for the duration.

Obviously there will be continuous improvement in design of planes, cannon, bombs, tanks, small arms, etc. and each improvement will result in changes which require machine tool activity.

Therefore, these congressmen reason, no handicap should be put upon seven-day-a-week, three-shift-a-day work in every plant engaged in war production.

THE SECOND reason is power. The government has been crying, "Wolf, wolf" about a power shortage every since it began clamoring for hydroelectric appropriations. It may or may not have been true when the first cries were made. That is a question which is debatable. But there is no doubt about it now that the war effort has come.

It so happens that it is not practical to save up electric power for peak loads at certain hours. That would require prodigious storage battery facilities, and we are short of some of the materials needed for batteries. So the sensible thing to do would be to utilize what power we have every hour in the twenty-four, and every day in the week.

This is especially true, of course, with water power, but it is also true of steam power. We do not have enough turbines. We need all the turbines our facilities can turn out. They are vital in ships, for instance.

This is still only part of it, but it gives an idea of how many congressmen are thinking.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Sunday, March 19, 1922.

Governor Harry L. Davis announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Effie E. Eggert, of Mansfield, was given recognition for meritorious work in campus journalism at OSU.

Former Governor James E. Campbell, of Columbus, was a visitor in Mansfield.

Mrs. Stephen Morris, 83, died at her home, 148 Blymyer avenue.

Rev. A. M. Hughes preached at morning and evening services at First Presbyterian church and was to assume pastorate in April.

Robert Richardson, student at Ohio Wesleyan university, was spending vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Richardson.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, March 19, 1937.

An explosion and fire at Westinghouse plant did damage estimated at $8,000.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCartney, 107 South Diamond street.

Mrs. R. A. Huffman returned home after spending five weeks in Tucson, Ariz.

Richard Burton was honored with a party on his ninth birthday anniversary.

Alan F. Griffin received diploma at Ohio State university winter quarter convocation.

TODAY IN HISTORY

March 19, 1813, marks the birth date of David Livingstone, famed English explorer of the dark continent. Livingstone made his most important contribution to the geography of Africa in 1849 when he discovered Lake Ngami. Thereafter he devoted his life to the opening up of the heart of this little known land, hoping to alleviate the horrors of slave-traffic. He steadfastly refused to return to civilization. On April 30, 1873 he died, deep in Africa's wilds.

Drinking Water, In Health and Disease

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

OUR NEED for water is very delicately regulated by one of the most sensitive sensations of the body, thirst. Thirst tells us how much water we ought to take in, to the finest decimal point. People write and ask me whether it does any harm to drink too much water—more than thirst demands—and other people say that they are practically never thirsty.

Well, in answer to the last, it is of course true that all our food contains water, some of it as much as 95%, and certain people use this food-water very avidly so that the demand for water in a pure form for them is not very great. Also the milk and coffee and other beverages we consume at the table are largely water.

So far as drinking water after thirst has been quenched, it is probable that no one is harmed by an excess of water in the body. Experiments made by Dr. Rowntree years ago show that the body gets rid of excessive water and every living cell protects itself from an exess of water content. They sap up water when they are depleted, but the body cells do not store water. When water is forced, however, there ensues a condition known as water intoxication which is practically always fatal.

The fact that we are dependent upon a constant renewal of our supply of water is what makes the problem of feeding an army and keeping it supplied with water so difficult on the long marches and under battle conditions. Water cannot be concentrated. The soldier has to carry his full load.

There are a great many peculiar things about water, however, which we do not understand. A gentleman writes me, for instance, that he is subject to migrane headaches and that when he knows one is coming on, he refuses to drink any water at all for a day or two and can often ward off a headache, preventing it altogether. This is true, according to him, with a number of chronic conditions and other forms of headache.

The only exception I know to the statement that the body cells do not store water is seen in a condition of reducing for obesity and overweight. People on a reduction diet go along for several days, usually about ten, without loss of weight and then suddenly begin to lose rapidly.

This has been ascribed to water retention that occurs in the fat cells. The fat may be removed but the water remains, so the person loses no weight. Suddenly the cells let go their excess water and a sudden falling off of weight occurs. So in a reduction cure do not be disappointed if you don't lose much the first few days.

Timely Editorial

Dues Come First.

"Production—uninterrupted production" is what President Roosevelt in his fireside speech requested of industry and labor as their contribution toward winning the war.

But on the very day the president spoke the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee threw a picket line around a plant in Granite City, Ill. While work was thus halted on armor being produced for tanks and gun mounts, the union officials went about collecting dues from delinquent members.

That's all there was to it—no dispute over hours or wages; no complaint of unfair working conditions; just a stoppage for the purpose of collecting money for the union treasury. Production? Uninterrupted production? Yes, after the dues have been collected. —New York Sun.

Must Control Wages and Profits To Halt Inflation, Baruch Warns

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Inside fact about the current quarrel over inflation and the farm bill is that sage old Bernie Baruch long ago warned the president, Leon Henderson and the inner circle that they could not stop inflation if they put the brake only on prices.

"Price-fixing is like a four-legged chair," Baruch warned them. "It won't stand on two legs or even three."

There is no use regulating consumer prices, he said, unless you also regulate profits, also wages, also farm prices. If one of them gets out of hand, the others will too.

Baruch, who was head of the War Industries Board in the last war, has been harping on this point for months. He urged congress more than a year ago to adopt a very high excess profits tax to take away all the war profits from industry; and at the same time he urged the president to clamp down on wages as well as prices.

The president actually got a little irritated at Baruch's pounding away on this theme. Today, however, chief resentment of the farm belt is not so much against Roosevelt's urging that farm prices be kept down, but over the fact that labor's income has skyrocketed while the farmer's hasn't. Furthermore, the farmer complains that he has to pay a lot more for his labor—when he can get it at all—but he can't increase his farm prices proportionately.

British Red Tape.

THERE'LL always be an England," but U. S. fliers now trying to save India are wondering why. British officials in India don't want them to enter India until 31 days after they have taken yellow fever shots. By that time the Japanese, who don't have to observe the 31 day rule, may obviate the need of U. S. fliers going to India at all.

Capital Chaff.

TO RUMORS that Ambassador John Winant will take Miss Perkins' place as secretary of labor, he says: "Why have all the headaches of a cabinet job?" He indicates that the job of being ambassador to Great Britain is much more interesting. However, rumors persist that Winant will remain in Washington and that Secretary of War Stimson will replace him in London. . . . The blunt report on disastrous losses at Java is interpreted by some as paving the way for Frank Knox's exit as secretary of the navy. . . . Miss Marguerite LeHand, long-time secretary of the president, is back in the White House after eight months illness, part of the time at Warm Springs. If the people around Roosevelt break down, imagine what kind of a constitution he has. . . . Sumner Welles used to telephone the president from Rio de Janeiro at around midnight. That means 2 a. m. Washington time. The president was still working.

Housing Problems.

CONGRESSIONAL investigators probing into defense housing conditions the other day ran across some interesting data regarding Charles F. Palmer, exco-ordinator of defense housing.

They discovered that in 1935, Palmer had almost been asked to resign from a local housing project in Atlanta, Georgia, because he split architects' and real estate commissions of $60,000.

Palmer was not then employed by the government, and the split commissions were to compensate him for work he had done in promoting a low cost housing project, later completed by the Public Works Administration.

However, the PWA division of investigation, after probing the matter, "recommended that the housing division exercise caution to see that split commissions do not prevail on any housing project in the future."

Also, A. R. Clas, director of PWA housing, reported as follows regarding Palmer:

"The report does not disclose any dishonesty on Mr. Palmer's part . . . but it has cast a doubt in my mind of Mr. Palmer's unselfish interest in the projects, and thus I am not sure of his motives in urging local control of the management.

"I have felt for some time that the committee (in Atlanta) as a result of Mr. Palmer's activities has been making no effort to reconcile the difficulties between the city and the government, but rather using the objections as a club to induce the government to turn over such profits to it. . . . I do not believe it is desirable to ask for Mr. Palmer's resignation at this time, although I feel the committee would function better without him."

Most significant fact is that despite this, the recognized Public Works Administration actually promoted Palmer to the vitally important job of defense housing co-ordinator where he has served until recently. Finally, however, he was eased out of the housing picture by a trip to inspect housing in England.

Ambassador to Russia.

FRIENDS are predicting that Admiral William H. Standley will do an outstanding job as U. S. ambassador to Russia, but he still can't believe it's true that he is going there.

"Russia is about the last place I figured the president would send me," he confides to friends, "because of something that happened back in 1934."

Standley was then chief of naval operations and caused a storm of isolationist protests by ordering fleet maneuvers in the far Pacific. Letters poured in on congress and the navy department, charging that the maneuvers would be an "affront" to Russia and Japan.

"A number of the leters lambasted me as anti-Russian," Standley recalls. "and there was so much agitation that I finally withdrew the order. However, it seemed logical to me to hold maneuvers and work out tactical problems in waters in which we might have to fight some day."

How right his judgment was has been amply proved by recent events. Also, if there were any lingering doubts about Standley's friendship for Russia, they were dispelled last year when he went there as a member of the U. S. lend-lease mission.

"A week after we arrived," Standley relates, "and while a lot of people were selling Russia short, I predicted that its army would not quit fighting and would eventually lick the Nazis. I'm prouder of that prediction than any I ever made."

Merry-Go-Round.

INSIDE word is that by fall men's clothing will be up 20 to 30 per cent over current prices. . . . It will take more than one billion pounds of food to feed the U. S. navy this year. Like the U. S. army, the navy is the best fed in the world. . . . Plans are under way to increase iron ore production this year to 88,000,000 tons. This is ten per cent more than in 1940, which was the second highest production period in U. S. history. . . . A postcard from a mid-Western town addressed to "George Washington, Washington, D. C.", inquiring about the color of the first president's hair was forwarded by postal officials to Representative Sol Bloom of N. Y., leading Washington authority in the capital.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—What's a "liver head"? That's a bum study, a guy who can't learn his lines. What's a "third banana"? That's a stooge comic who takes the falls. What are "jerks"? That's the audience. . . . All this is burlesque talk, and in the light of what has happened in recent weeks to burlesque I thought you'd want to know.

Burlesque, you know, is "dead." But you will pardon me if I seem unable to take its demise too seriously. I remember that the same corpse was laid out on the same cooling board by Mr. Paul Moss, the commissioner of licenses, and his adherents, back in 1937.

Of course, Mr. Moss was a little premature. Within a few weeks the same old G-strings were tantalizing the same old bald heads back at the same old peanut stands, and if they operated under a camouflaged name, well, that didn't matter to the bum in the third row.

NOW the same wonderful witch hunt has been held all over again. I see in the papers that the old burly houses are padlocked, and that those "cesspools of indecency" have been banished at last. Maybe so, but I doubt it. Burlesque is the oldest form of organized show business on earth. When it adopted, or rather when it began to publicize its strip tease dancers a few years ago it ran into trouble.

Girls in burlesque houses began to take off their clothes bit by frill, and when the people began to talk about it, the censorship boys began to act. Therefore, it's against the law for a dancer in a burlesque theater to take off her clothes while on the stage in front of an audience, but it's perfectly legal and okay in a night-club, many of whose whole system of entertainment is predicated on the strip.

YOU will hear plenty of strong language since Mr. Moss refused to renew licenses of operation to the burlesque houses on Broadway, pro and con. The antis have labeled burlesque halls "breeders of prostitutes." In the back stage dressing rooms Mr. Moss's name has been changed to "Dr. Mud." Playwrights, critics, dramatists, actors of the legitimate theater have sided almost unanimously with the burlesque people. They have denounced it as censorship, any form of which is anathema. But the edict stands and those horrid burlesquers can't do their shimmies or tell their "cacky" stories any more. Cacky means smutty.

But, don't you cry. It won't be long before "Moonlight and Roses" will take its place on some midtown stage. "Moonlight and Roses" is just another way of saying "Follies Brassiere" or "Anatomy and Cleopatra." That's the way burlesque titles go, those and "Behind Red Tights," and "A Broad at Home." They may not look that way on the marquees. . . . They may seem reminiscent of "Vanities" and "Crazy Quilt." But, down deep, it'll be the same. A rose by any other name, you know.

Hints on Etiquette

If you are a guest of honor at a dinner in a maidless home, don't try to help in last-minute preparations unless your hostess wants you to. She usually has matters well in hand, unless she is very inexperienced. A Farmer's Diary

First Meadow Lark

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TEN days ago I saw a lonely lark fly from the brink of Honey Creek down into the withered grass of the meadow pasture. The wind was raw. Sleet and snow were in the air. The thick turf beneath was frozen. No sunshine or pleasant skies greeted that solitary early comer.

One swallow does not make a summer, nor does the first lark make the spring. Yet that single flight was like a bit of promise of plenteous showers, south winds blowing, early wild flowers of the woods.

Strong heart this first little bird must have, to brave cold and famine in order to spy out the land for the rest of his kind who follow. Like the dove of old, sent out from the window of the ark, the fact that the lark came and remained was a good omen.

I saw it drop into a hollow of the field. Its drab upper coat and greenish breast below, blended so completely with the upper withered grass and the hint of greening blades beneath, that the bird was lost to view before my eyes. There in that cold, damp, cheerless bed, screened from the cruel wind by only a thinly woven thatch of last year's stubble, this bird would find a boon of rest and sleep for the night. "Step lightly, March," I repeated to myself, and hoped no ice storm would come to cover the nightly layer with snow and smother my little friend.

But now, larks are everywhere. The clean white belt shows beautifully on the spreading tail, in flight. They mount upon old fence stakes, posts, or wires along the roadside. Each morning their tribe increases until they rival the red wing blackbirds among the cattails of the swamp or the song sparrows among the slender willows of the thicket.

This evening just at twilight I heard that sweet liquid note rise from the meadow, flow quivering from the highest stake and bathe the painted western sunlit hill in a welcome spring song.

INDUSTRIALISTS TO DINE MONDAY

Newspaperman to Address Annual Dinner; Expect 325 at Session.

Tom Collins, Kansas City newspaperman and nationally-known after dinner speaker, will address the Manufacturers club of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce at its 23rd annual meeting next Monday evening, Paul R. Tappan, president, announced today.

Approximately 325 are expected to attend the affair, which will start with a dinner at 6:30 p. m., and will be held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Invitations to attend have been extended to the commissioners and secretary of the Ohio Industrial commission, and to the president and other officials of the Ohio Manufacturers association.

Collins, humorist and philosopher, is assistant to the publisher and daily columnist on the Kansas City Journal. Widely sought as a speaker, he gave more than 350 talks last year in 40 states. He has made a number of movie shorts and was featured in a series of programs on a national radio hook-up.

His subject has not been announced.

COURT NEWS IN ASHLAND COUNTY

ASHLAND — Judgment of $500 and foreclosure of a mortgage are sought in a suit filed in Ashland common pleas court by the First National bank against Stanton and Nellie Fasig.

Common Pleas Judge H. E. Culbertson has been hearing the injunction suit brought by the Village of Jeromesville against a number of the village property owners to prevent use of a water system from a spring claiming that the spring water system is not approved by the State Board of Health.

ASHLAND CLUBS NAME OFFICERS

ASHLAND — New officers of the Lincoln School P. T. A. and the Arthur Street P. T. A. were elected this week. Mrs. Miles Strine was elected president of the Lincoln P. T. A.; Mrs. Gerald Wood, vice president; Mrs. Charles Esbenshade, secretary and Mrs. Fred Kaylor, treasurer.

New officers of the Arthur Street P. T. A. are: Mrs. Clarence Cordell, president; Mrs. Roger Paxton, vice president; Mrs. Floyd Baker, secretary, and Mrs Clarence Thomas, treasurer.

Nominating committees were named at Osborn, Pleasant Street, and Grant Street P. T. A. meetings with officers to be elected in April.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

CONFERS WITH MANSFIELD'S GASOLINE DEALERS ON 'CURFEW'

S. N. Russell, executive secretary of the Ohio Gasoline Retailer, Inc., returned to the organization's headquarters in Akron today after two days of conferences with leaders of the Mansfield Gasoline Retailers association concerning the curfew on gasoline station operation.

The association here first established voluntary participation by Mansfield independent and lessee dealers in the plan to reduce service station hours to a schedule of 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. daily, and 7 a. m. to 1 p. m. Sundays. Later city council passed an ordinance establishing such a curfew, but a temporary injunction has blocked enforcement.

Addressing a meeting of Mansfield retailers, Russell said their most powerful weapon in their fight to support the curfew is public opinion.

Considerable interest is attached the Mansfield situation, he said, because this is the first city in Ohio in which an effort is being made to establish a gasoline curfew by ordinance, although there are numerous cities in other states where this is being done. Transcrits of arguments in injunction hearings in other cities are being obtaned for use in the hearing on a permanent injunction here, Russell said.

Russell outlined to Mansfield dealers the major points stressed by the Ohio and National associations in endorsing the shorter hours for service station operation. He listed these as the resultant conservation of manpower and electrical power, the contributions to defense by having station lights turned out at night when they could serve as guides to enemy planes, and prolonging life of tires by curbing unnecessary use of gasoline.

JOHNSVILLE MAN TAKEN BY DEATH

LEXINGTON — A farmer at nearby Johnsville, Mellrow Smith, 62, died in Mansfield General hospital early today following a two weeks illness.

Surviving are his widow, Lucy; a son, Howard, at home; his mother, Mrs. Anna Smith of Johnsville, and a brother, Roy, of near Johnsville.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m., Saturday at the home. Rev. W. B. Smith, pastor of Johnsville Evangelical church will officiate. Burial will be in Shauck cemetery.

MAP PROGRAM TO VACCINATE SCHOOL PUPILS

State, City Health Officials Plan To Immunize 10,000 as Wartime Measure.

Approximately 10,000 Mansfield and Richland county children between the ages of nine months and ten years may receive diphtheria and typhoid shots as a part of a "real war time emergency" vaccination program of the state health department.

Dr. William B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, announced today that he had received a letter from Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director, asking cooperation in guarding the health of Mansfield area children against wartime epidemics.

Wild said that Richland county had instituted a program for the immunization of all children and that about 3,000 had already been treated.

Four schools in the county, those at Ganges, Shiloh, Bellville and Lexington, have had their pupils immunized against smallpox and doctors throughout the county have answered Dr. Wild's plea to help immunize all the children against smallpox and diphtheria.

Dr. Markwith, in his letter to Wild and 202 other county and municipal health departments throughout the state, said that the state, in co-operation with the Social Security board, would furnish free all the toxoid needed to immunize children against diphtheria.

"Because of the perishable character of smallpox vaccine it cannot be supplied free, Dr. Markwith said. "But the money saved on diphtheria toxoid will enable health departments to save enough money to purchase vaccine."

Markwith said that vaccination program was being directed principally toward immunization of younger children against preventable diseases because most deaths from diseases occur among children between nine months and ten years old.

Dr. Wild said that his department had also been furnishing free smallpox vaccine to doctors for the treatment of children and that he had written to both the Mansfield and Richland county school boards, asking them to make immunization compulsory.

Children's Fund Of Red Cross to Receive Receipts

The National Children's Fund of the Red Cross which in the present emergency has aided the stricken children of the Philippines and established shelters for the hundreds of English children left homeless by air raids will receive proceeds from the Junior Red Cross benefits concert to be presented Sunday at 4 p. m. at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine's Treble choir is presenting the program and Mrs. George Hall and Miss Thelma Reed, duo pianists, will be the guest artists.

Both the choir members and Junior Red Cross are handling tickets for the occasion. The National Children's Fund was organized in 1919 during the World war and one of its first big pieces of work during the current conflict was providing the Junior Red Cross of Greece with materials to make garments for the children of Greek soldiers.

The body was removed to the Whittridge Mortuary. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

HOLMES LOAN COMPANY PAYS NEW DIVIDEND

Holmes County Savings Set To Distribute $24,000 To Stockholders.

MILLERSBURG — A second 10 per cent liquidating dividend, amounting to $24,168, will be paid to 275 stockholders of the Holmes County Savings and Loan company March 20. The dividend has been approved by Charles S. Merion, superintendent of building and loan associations and the board of directors of the company.

The company went into voluntary liquidation Jan. 15, and the first dividend was paid Feb. 14. Carl A. Hopkins, deputy superintendent in charge of the liquidation, said it would be necessary for all stockholders to either bring or mail their passbooks or stock certificates to the company office on North Clay street, in order to receive their dividends.

Another liquidating dividend will be paid as rapidly as funds can be accumulated for the purpose, Mr. Hopkins stated.

In accord with the nation-wide health program to protect children against disease, Dr. A. J. Earney, health commissioner, announces that effort is being made to have every child in HIolmes county protected against diphtheria, whooping cough and smallpox.

County Superintendent D. C. Egger, is co-operting in sending out letters to every home in the consolidated school district informing parents of this plan. It is desired and expected that as many as possible will be cared for through their family physician.

MEET MONDAY

Morrow Farmers To Discuss AAA at Conference.

MT. GILEAD—Farmers of Morrow county whose "production now" campaign recently attracted presidential praise, will hold a special conference Monday to survey the position of the American farmer in the war effort.

More than 700 farmers are expected to attend the conference sponsored by the county AAA committee. Clay Renz, chairman of the group, said today they will consider the farmer's job in meeting present and future war-time food needs.

Regional AAA Director Harry N. Schooler, of Washington, will address the meeting. Other speakers will include Miss Virginia Cooley, U. S. employment service; J. O. Sherrick, AAA state fieldman; Ray H. Booher, mayor of Mt. Gilead; Miss Dorothy McMeekin, farmer fieldwoman of Milwaukee, Wis.; and C. F. Weimer, managing editor of the Columbus Citizen.

Seltzer park board set Decoration day as the tentative opening date for the Seltzer park swimming pool during a regular meeting Tuesday night at the city building.

The board decided at the meeting to open the pool on that date unless the weather is unfavorable. The park system here officially opens with the swimming pool although a number of persons use the picnic facilities there before that date. The tables and benches are always placed out in the park as soon as the weather is favorable.

One new board member, Clayton Mayer, was seated at the meeting. He succeeds Jack Kennedy, sr., whose term expired last year.

FORM TROOP

Meet To Organize New Boy Scout Unit at Shelby.

SHELBY—Six boys that will make up Troop 6 Boy Scouts here when the troop is organized at First Lutheran church met Wednesday night for a meeting.

Alex Innis, who will be the scoutmaster of the troop as soon as it gets its charter, instructed the boys in various phases of scout work. Ted Briggs, Rover Scout of Troop — will be the assistant scoutmaster.

The troop needs two more members before it can apply for a charter from the National Boy Scout headquarters.

MILLERSBURG — Funeral arrangements are being made for Ira Hoxworth, 54-year-old farmer of south of Killbuck, who died from a self inflicted rifle wound Wednesday.

Dr. N. P. Stauffer, Killbuck, was called and Hoxworth rushed to Pomerene Memorial hospital. Hoxworth had been in poor health for some time.

He is survived by his widow and one son, Emmett of Akron.

HITLER RECALLS FIRED GENERALS

Swiss Paper Reports Plans Under Way For Early Spring Offensive.

forces had regained control of 6,000 square miles of territory behind the German siege lines around Leningrad and declared they were so strong that the Germans could not enter the region.

Although not specifically identified, the section may be a part of the Baltic state of Estonia, which the Germans overran in their drive against Leningrad.

Russian appeals for opening of a second front against Germany were renewed today by the Moscow News, now published in Kuibyshev, with a declaration that anti-Hitler forces "can and must determine the future progress of the war."

From a secret continental base, the German-freedom radio said German troops and laborers were strengthening Netherlands defenses and "these preparations show Hitler actually expects a landing by British and American troops."

Neither London nor Washington, however, indicated that any major thrust toward Germany beyond bombing was in prospect immediately.

The Soviet information bureau said 3,000 Germans had been killed in a five-day fight on a central sector, perhaps referring to the previously announced encirclement of Gzhatsk, German-held town 100 miles west of Moscow.

Establishment of a U. S. aerial base in Guatemala was disclosed in a dispatch from the capital of that Central American republic. Supplementing Panama canal defenses, bombers laden with high explosives range ceaselessly over the Pacific and Caribbean.

Brazilian authorities rounded up a number of Japanese nationals in raids which police said uncovered evidence that the Sao Paulo colony was "in a state of readiness" to act upon radio orders from Tokyo.

DEATH CLAIMS WILLIAM BOHL

William E. Bohl, 62, died late yesterday at the Richland county home after a short illness.

Mr. Bohl was born in Crawford county on April 9, 1879. Survivors are four sisters, Mrs. Grover Balliett of Galion, Mrs. Clyde Franks and Mrs. Flora Walter of Findlay, and Mrs. C. C. Weedman of Dayton; and a brother, Herman Bohl of Galion.

The body was removed to the Jones Memorial but will be taken to the Whittridge funeral home in Galion today. Funeral services will be held from the funeral home tomorrow at 2 p. m., with Rev. C. C. Young, pastor of the Peace Lutheran church, Galion, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

Sunkist
Best for Juice
You can see the difference in California orange juice. It has a deeper color!
You can taste the difference. It has a richer, more delicious flavor!
And science proves the difference. More vitamins C and A, and calcium in every glass! With vitamins B1 and G.
California oranges ripen in all-year sunshine. They draw on fertile soils, fed and watered with exacting care.
That is why they give you "extras" in enjoyment and healthfulness.
and Every use!
These are seedless Navels—easy to peel, slice and section. Ideal for recipes, lunch boxes and odd-hour eating.
Oranges trademarked "Sunkist" on the skin are the finest produced by 14,000 cooperating growers. Insist upon them for quality; buy several dozen at a time for economy.

EXAMS SET FOR FEDERAL JOBS

Addressograph Operators and Radio Inspectors Needed, Commission Says.

Radio inspectors and addressograph operators are being sought through civil service examinations announced by the U. S. Civil Service commission.

As a result of the radio inspector examination, persons will be appointed to positions in the Federal Communications commission paying $2,000 and $2,600 a year, according to G. H. Hoover, secretary of the Mansfield district, Civil Service commission.

Applicants must have completed a four-year college course either in electrical or communication engineering or with a major in physics. The closing date for receipts of applications is April 21. Under certain conditions applications will be accepted from senior and graduate college students.

The addressograph operator examination is for appointment in Washington, D. C., only and the positions pay $1,260 and $1,440 a year. No written test will be given. Further information on all these examinations may be had by contacting the Civil Service commission in the postoffice.

Other examinations open include aircraft mechanics of various kinds, packers, repairmen, machinists, patrolman, storekeepers and welders, all in the aircraft line.

COUNTY CHECKS TUBERCULOSIS

Minnesota Sub-Division Gets Award For Campaign To Eliminate Disease.

(By United Press)

TYLER, Minn. — The world's first human tuberculosis control certificate based on standards set up by the Minnesota state department of health and the Minnesota Medical association, has been awarded to Lincoln county in southwestern Minnesota.

The award, state health officials said, marks a new step in the battle to eliminate the disease from among the human population.

It is patterned after the system of awards set up in 1923 for control of bovine tuberculosis which has been credited with the virtual elimination of the disease from among the nation's herds of cattle.

The standards for the human award are less stringent than those applied to cattle, but authorities said they would be tightened gradually as more counties become accredited. To begin with, a county to receive a certificate of accreditation must have a death rate of 10 per cent or less per 100,000 population, and the infection rate among high school seniors must be 15 per cent or less.

Official records for Lincoln county since 1936 disclosed a death rate of only 5.5 per cent and the same percentage was noted for the infection rate for high school seniors throughout the county.

'Date Tabs' Will Replace Auto Tags Under WPB Order

WASHINGTON— (U.P.)— Future automobile license plates will be "small date tabs" not more than four inches square attached to present license plates to bring them up to date, under a war production board order issued today.

The board prohibited the states from issuing more than 10 per cent by weight of the usual number of plates and these only for new licenses and to replace plates lost or destroyed.

Noting that it would be advisable to be sparing of metal, WPB gave notice that there was "no guarantee that the states or other local governments will get sheet steel sufficient to meet the 10 per cent requirement."

Maury Maverick, chief of the WPB government requirements bureau, said the restrictions did not apply to metals already cut or stamped on March 18.

WARDEN'S BLOOD TYPED

LANSING—(U.P.)— Michigan game wardens will begin carrying blood type cards this spring as standard equipment. Conservation officials said the cards would enable physicians to give quick transfusions in case of hunting emergencies.

CHANGE TACTICS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex — (U.P.) — Even the beggars have been changed by the war.

An old mendicant usually found on North St. Mary's street no longer asks passersby to give him five cents for a cup of coffee.

Now he salutes smartly and says, "Lieutenant, can you loan me a nickel?"

ANCIENT STETHOSCOPE

GRANITE, Okla. —(U.P.)— Dr. J. B. Landsden recently received a 100-year-old stethoscope from Tennessee relatives. It was made by hand labor of cedar, being eight inches long and funned shaped. Landsden said heartbeats can be heard clearly with the instrument.

THIRSTS FOR DEFENSE

FALL RIVER, Mass. —(U.P.)— Francis P. Moffitt and his son, who are conducting an individual defense stamp selling campaign in their restaurant, hung up a sign reading: "Instead of buying a drink for the bartender, buy a stamp for democracy." They almost sold out their entire $250 stamp stock the first day.

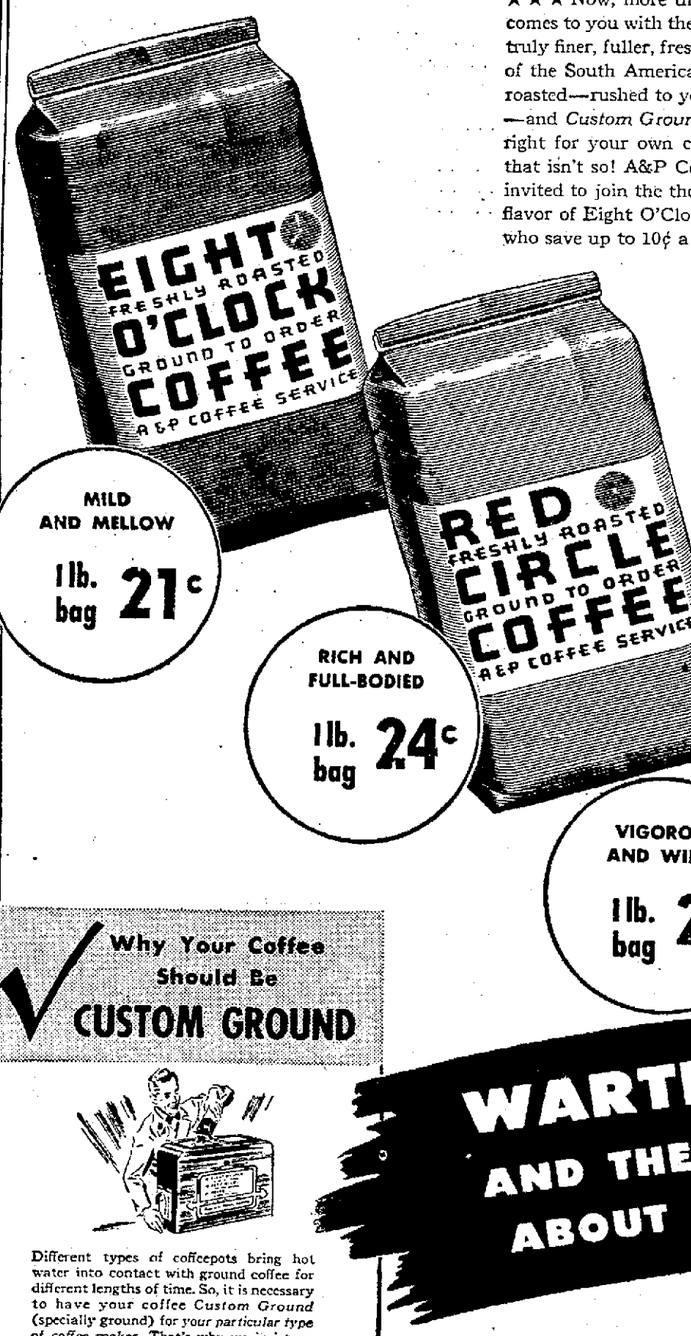
Enjoy THE FINER, FRESHER FLAVOR OF A&P COFFEE!

★★★ Now, more than ever, you need the enjoyment that comes to you with the magnificent flavor of A&P Coffee. It's truly finer, fuller, fresher flavor! No wonder! Here's the pick of the South American plantations—expertly blended and roasted—rushed to your A&P still in the flavor-sealed bean—and Custom Ground for you when you buy, ground just right for your own coffeepot. All this sounds costly—but that isn't so! A&P Coffee is downright thrifty. And you're invited to join the thousands who thrill to the finer, fresher flavor of Eight O'Clock, Red Circle or Bokar Coffee—and who save up to 10¢ a pound!



MILD AND MELLOW 1 lb. bag 21c

RICH AND FULL-BODIED 1 lb. bag 24c

VIGOROUS AND WINEY 1 lb. bag 26c

Why Your Coffee Should Be CUSTOM GROUND

Different types of coffeepots bring hot water into contact with ground coffee for different lengths of time. So, it is necessary to have your coffee Custom Ground (specially ground) for your particular type of coffee-maker. That's why we insist on grinding your coffee exactly right for your coffee-maker. Custom Ground Coffee means fuller flavor—and it takes only 11 seconds!

FOR REGULAR POT have A&P Coffee ground COARSE

FOR PERCOLATOR have A&P Coffee ground MEDIUM

FOR DRIP POT have A&P Coffee ground FINE

FOR VACUUM POT have A&P Coffee ground EXTRA FINE

WARTIME.. AND THE STORY ABOUT COFFEE

Is there a coffee shortage? At present, no—and every effort is being made to assure a sufficient supply. But this is wartime—and supplies of coffee like those of any imported product may be temporarily curtailed by shipping problems. As America's largest coffee merchant we advise you to buy normally. Don't create a false shortage. As fresh coffee flavor is what you want, don't store coffee in any form. We will do everything possible to assure our customers a normal supply of really fresh A&P Coffee.

Will there be a change in coffee quality? American coffee lovers have shown their appreciation of the fine product that the coffee industry has provided. Naturally we can speak only for A&P Coffee, in which there will be no change from the high quality that has always marked these fine blends. A&P Coffee will continue to represent the pick of South American plantations . . . blended and roasted expertly . . . delivered to A&P Stores and Super Markets in the flavor-sealed bean . . . Custom Ground exactly right for your own coffeepot at the very moment you buy.

Will coffee prices soar? No. The Office of Price Administration of the U. S. Government has established for your protection, top prices for green coffee. This has been done to prevent further rises. Should an increase in the price of roasted coffee occur, it will be due to advances in war-risk insurance rates, carrying charges, and other costs. Needless to say, A&P's pre-war policy of asking a very small profit for bringing its fine coffee to you—will continue. Further, we will go right on extending this invitation: Join the thousands who enjoy A&P Coffee and save up to 10c a lb.

CHAPTER XXXI

"I've been very unfair to you in my thoughts," Judith said.

"Naturally. I wanted you to be."

"Then why today? Why — now?"

Max said simply, "To answer your questions. To explain myself. Because coming back it occurred to me that I owed you that and that if I didn't see you, all your life perhaps you would wonder. It would be as if you had stopped reading a mystery story in the middle." He shook his head. "I have not always been as fair."

Smiling, he took her hand and held it for a few moments before he spoke again. "You are not in love with me now. Your hand tells me. It's a lovely, sensitive hand, but it doesn't respond. Don't censor yourself for it, Judith. It's a perfectly natural state of affairs. We weren't mistakes. Nothing that gave us so much could have been a mistake."

"You haven't changed, Max."

"No. I knew the correct answer to us from the beginning. You had to find it—the hard way. You've been hurt, but you're wiser and nicer for it." He smiled again. "This is my last gesture where women are concerned. Fay and I are being married tonight." At her incredulous look he chuckled. "Yes! We are being married at 7 in her living-room with all my antiquated uncles and aunts witnessing the ceremony with great relief and joy. They have always loved Fay. I love her, too, and I intend to be utterly faithful. We are leaving almost at once for Venezuela by plane . . . So this is the end of the saga of Max Worthington, Judith. It will be a sort of twilight trail for Fay and me."

"I'm very glad for both of you."

"You were right. In the end it's the common, ordinary, little things that keep people close."

"You must have a great many things to do."

"My trunk is always ready for flight. And you?"

"I'm all right."

"I know you are. I didn't mean that. I meant rather that I want to inquire briefly about — about the young man who is to me no more than a boy in years."

"He's Stephen Larrabee and I've behaved very badly." She smiled. "He's the usual young man with a promising job, a set of golf sticks and a membership in the country club. He's the usual young man to a bystander, but he's someone special to me."

"You're very lucky. And now." He took her hand again and smiled at her. "We omitted the usual preliminaries so let's omit the usual good-bye. Shall we go?"

"Just one thing more. Suppose I had still loved you."

"That was the chance I took."

Walking beside his tall straight figure through the lobby, she thought, "This is the last time I shall ever see Max. It hurts because I like him. I never thought about liking him before. You never think about liking a man you're in love with. And I understand everything now. I understand him."

Presently they were standing on the sidewalk.

"Do you want a taxi, Judith?"

"No. I'm going to walk."

"I must get a taxi. He turned to her. Looking up, she saw the fine wrinkles around his eyes and the fair hair that was thinning. She gave him her hand and smiled a sad little smile for a farewell without regret.

"Max—"

"Don't say it. We think we have had high moments, but of all of them—this is our best. We won't forget, Judith, but it will be a remembering without wanting."

He turned away, stepped quickly into a waiting taxi that turned the corner and vanished.

Judith walked down Park avenue, thinking of the quickening and dying of her pulse when Max had come toward her. It was not that she had never loved him. Nor had it been infatuation or romantic excitement. Love does not die, but people changed.

Looking back, she could see every step in the change. Slowly rebellion had become contentment. And Stephen? Nothing wonderful or particularly stimulating had marked the times they had spent together. There had been just a series of little things. Slowly the roots of their lives had grown together by those series of seemingly unimportant meetings—until she needed him. She had not known that sitting beside him in a movie or facing him across a tennis court or dancing with him he had been making her need him. The dear, foolish, little things remained the longest . . . Nor had he known. For from the beginning he had needed her. From the beginning she had been his "best" . . . With Stephen it would not ever be a remembering without wanting because the want and the need would grow. The usual marriage with the usual man.

And on the same streets she had once walked in the month of March her heart crying for Max she walked now in July, all her questions of Max answered, her need of Stephen growing and all the simple, honest, direct things he had told her echoing in her mind.

In her room at last she went directly to the telephone and called Stephen's boarding house.

Presently she heard Mrs. Bradford's, "Hello."

Judith said, "Mrs. Bradford, this is Judith Barth. Is Mr. Larrabee there?"

"I'll see if you'll wait a minute."

Judith felt as though she were suspended in mid-air while she waited, hearing Mrs. Bradford's too large slippers clattering up the steps . . .

"Hello," Stephen said impatiently.

"Oh! This is Judith." Because she wanted to say so much she could say nothing.

He said, "Oh!" Then, "Well."

"I didn't expect to find you there. I thought you'd be driving up to Lake George today . . ." She didn't want to say that . . .

"Tomorrow morning first thing."

"I'm coming home tonight, Stephen. Will you meet my train?"

"Well, I don't know if I can. Very well. I'll meet you. What time?"

She told him.

He said, "Okay, see you then," in a cool voice.

A few moments later Judith was in a taxi on her way to the station.

The journey was endless. The look of contentment on the faces of other passengers increased her impatience. Seven o'clock came and went before she realized that Max and Fay were married.

After the train stopped at Clinton and Judith got off she saw Stephen coming toward her wearing a brown suit that deepened his sunburn. "The little things," she thought, her heart moving crazily.

His "Hello" was cordial but cool as he picked up her bag.

"Thanks for meeting me."

They walked through the station and out to his car.

"I haven't had any dinner, Stephen."

"Why didn't you get it on the train?" He said, trying to sound severe.

"I wasn't hungry."

"We'll stop some place. I've had mine."

"But you could eat ice cream You always can."

They entered a small place that had yellow chintz curtains at the windows and maple chairs and tables and pretty waitresses in yellow uniforms. The dinner hour had long passed and only two older women were there.

Judith ordered a light dinner; Stephen ice cream.

"I've never been here before," she said.

"Home-cooked meals." He smiled slightly. "People who live at Mrs. Bradford's always know all the restaurants in town."

If anybody had been watching, he or she would probably thought it odd to see her unclasp the charm bracelet, Max had given her, remove it from her wrist and leave it on the table.

Over it their eyes met. She nodded, her throat aching. "I wanted you to see me take it off. There it is, Stephen, and — and everything that went with it."

His eyes that once she thought too beautiful for a man darkened.

"Do you mean it, Judith?"

"And so much more. I—I mean so much that it all rushes together and I can't say anything."

"You mean you'll—marry me?"

"Wouldn't you like to hear about—"

"Maybe some other time, but not now. Not now!" He leaned closer and he was terribly excited. "You mean you'll marry me?"

"I haven't had any training to be a wife. Stephen, but I know some of the things she shouldn't be, so that should leave some of the things she should be—"

"You'll be a wonderful wife. And you'll marry me even if I have to go to camp for a year?"

He had not said that he loved her—yet. He had not called her by any endearing names. He just sat opposite her, looking at her. His saying, "You'll be a wonderful wife" was the loveliest thing that anyone had ever said to her.

"Stephen, everything that you are is what I want."

He smiled. He couldn't stop smiling. "What will your mother and dad say?"

"Shall we go and find out?"

"You haven't had your dinner."

"I don't want any."

"What shall we do with this?" Max's bracelet . . . "I don't care if you wear it now . . . Judith, we'll make it soon?"

"Very soon. Shall we go?"

"You were kidding. You weren't hungry."

"I had to see you alone."

"I want to see you alone. I want to kiss you."

He left money on the table and they arose and went toward the door. But a young man came in and spoke to Stephen.

"Your second dinner tonight, Dave?" Stephen asked him.

"Yes. I'm going to get out of that place. Mrs. Bradford's roasts appear in a different dress every night, but it's still the same old roast."

"I'm getting out, too." Stephen looked at Judith before he said, "Dave, this is the Larrabee corporation."

EXAMS SET FOR FEDERAL JOBS

Addressograph Operators and Radio Inspectors Needed, Commission Says.

Radio inspectors and addressograph operators are being sought through civil service examinations announced by the U. S. Civil Service commission.

As a result of the radio inspector examination, persons will be appointed to positions in the Federal Communications commission paying $2,000 and $2,600 a year, according to G. H. Hoover, secretary of the Mansfield district, Civil Service commission.

Applicants must have completed a four-year college course either in electrical or communication engineering or with a major in physics. The closing date for receipts of applications is April 21. Under certain conditions applications will be accepted from senior and graduate college students.

The addressograph operator examination is for appointment in Washington, D. C., only and the positions pay $1,260 and $1,440 a year. No written test will be given. Further information on all these examinations may be had by contacting the Civil Service commission in the postoffice.

Other examinations open include aircraft mechanics of various kinds, packers, repairmen, machinists, patrolman, storekeepers and welders, all in the aircraft line.

COUNTY CHECKS TUBERCULOSIS

Minnesota Sub-Division Gets Award For Campaign To Eliminate Disease.

(By United Press)

TYLER, Minn. — The world's first human tuberculosis control certificate based on standards set up by the Minnesota state department of health and the Minnesota Medical association, has been awarded to Lincoln county in southwestern Minnesota.

The award, state health officials said, marks a new step in the battle to eliminate the disease from among the human population.

It is patterned after the system of awards set up in 1923 for control of bovine tuberculosis which has been credited with the virtual elimination of the disease from among the nation's herds of cattle.

The standards for the human award are less stringent than those applied to cattle, but authorities said they would be tightened gradually as more counties become accredited. To begin with, a county to receive a certificate of accreditation must have a death rate of 10 per cent or less per 100,000 population, and the infection rate among high school seniors must be 15 per cent or less.

Official records for Lincoln county since 1936 disclosed a death rate of only 5.5 per cent and the same percentage was noted for the infection rate for high school seniors throughout the county.

'Date Tabs' Will Replace Auto Tags Under WPB Order

WASHINGTON— (AP)—Future automobile license plates will be "small date tabs" not more than four inches square attached to present license plates to bring them up to date, under a war production board order issued today.

The board prohibited the states from issuing more than 10 per cent by weight of the usual number of plates and these only for new licenses and to replace plates lost or destroyed.

Noting that it would be advisable to be sparing of metal, WPB gave notice that there was "no guarantee that the states or other local governments will get sheet steel sufficient to meet the 10 per cent requirement."

Maury Maverick, chief of the WPB government requirements bureau, said the restrictions did not apply to metals already cut or stamped on March 18.

WARDEN'S BLOOD TYPED

LANSING—(U.P.)— Michigan game wardens will begin carrying blood type cards this spring as standard equipment. Conservation officials said the cards would enable physicians to give quick transfusions in case of hunting emergencies.

CHANGE TACTICS

SAN ANTONIO, Tex — (U.P.) — Even the beggars have been changed by the war.

An old mendicant usually found on North St. Mary's street no longer asks passersby to give him five cents for a cup of coffee.

Now he salutes smartly and says, "Lieutenant, can you loan me a nickel?"

ANCIENT STETHOSCOPE

GRANITE, Okla. —(U.P.)— Dr. J. B. Landsden recently received a 100-year-old stethoscope from Tennessee relatives. It was made by hand labor of cedar, being eight inches long and funned shaped. Landsden said heartbeats can be heard clearly with the instrument.

THIRSTS FOR DEFENSE

FALL RIVER, Mass. —(U.P.)— Francis P. Moffitt and his son, who are conducting an individual defense stamp selling campaign in their restaurant, hung up a sign reading: "Instead of buying a drink for the bartender, buy a stamp for democracy." They almost sold out their entire $250 stamp stock the first day.

Enjoy THE FINER, FRESHER FLAVOR OF A&P COFFEE!

★★★ Now, more than ever, you need the enjoyment that comes to you with the magnificent flavor of A&P Coffee. It's truly finer, fuller, fresher flavor! No wonder! Here's the pick of the South American plantations—expertly blended and roasted—rushed to your A&P still in the flavor-sealed bean—and Custom Ground for you when you buy, ground just right for your own coffeepot. All this sounds costly—but that isn't so! A&P Coffee is downright thrifty. And you're invited to join the thousands who thrill to the finer, fresher flavor of Eight O'Clock, Red Circle or Bokar Coffee—and who save up to 10¢ a pound!

Why Your Coffee Should Be CUSTOM GROUND

Different types of coffeepots bring hot water into contact with ground coffee for different lengths of time. So, it is necessary to have your coffee Custom Ground (specially ground) for your particular type of coffee-maker. That's why we insist on grinding your coffee exactly right for your coffee-maker. Custom Ground Coffee means fuller flavor—and it takes only 11 seconds!

FOR REGULAR POT have A&P Coffee ground COARSE

FOR PERCOLATOR have A&P Coffee ground MEDIUM

FOR DRIP POT have A&P Coffee ground FINE

WARTIME.. AND THE STORY ABOUT COFFEE

Is there a coffee shortage? At present, no—and every effort is being made to assure a sufficient supply. But this is wartime—and supplies of coffee like those of any imported product may be temporarily curtailed by shipping problems. As America's largest coffee merchant we advise you to buy normally. Don't create a false shortage. As fresh coffee flavor is what you want, don't store coffee in any form. We will do everything possible to assure our customers a normal supply of really fresh A&P Coffee.

Will there be a change in coffee quality? American coffee lovers have shown their appreciation of the fine product that the coffee industry has provided. Naturally we can speak only for A&P Coffee, in which there will be no change from the high quality that has always marked these fine blends. A&P Coffee will continue to represent the pick of South American plantations . . . blended and roasted expertly . . . delivered to A&P Stores and Super Markets in the flavor-sealed bean . . . Custom Ground exactly right for your own coffeepot at the very moment you buy.

Will coffee prices soar? No. The Office of Price Administration of the U. S. Government has established for your protection, top prices for green coffee. This has been done to prevent further rises. Should an increase in the price of roasted coffee occur, it will be due to advances in war-risk insurance rates, carrying charges, and other costs. Needless to say, A&P's pre-war policy of asking a very small profit for bringing its fine coffee to you—will continue. Further, we will go right on extending this invitation: Join the thousands who enjoy A&P Coffee and save up to 10c a lb.

CHAPTER XXXI

"I've been very unfair to you in my thoughts," Judith said.

"Naturally. I wanted you to be."

"Then why today? Why — now?"

Max said simply. "To answer your questions. To explain myself. Because coming back it occurred to me that I owed you that and that if I didn't see you, all your life perhaps you would wonder. It would be as if you had stopped reading a mystery story in the middle." He shook his head. "I have not always been as fair."

Smiling, he took her hand and held it for a few moments before he spoke again. "You are not in love with me now. Your hand tells me. It's a lovely, sensitive hand, but it doesn't respond. Don't censor yourself for it, Judith. It's a perfectly natural state of affairs. We weren't mistakes. Nothing that gave us so much could have been a mistake."

"You haven't changed, Max."

"No. I knew the correct answer to us from the beginning. You had to find it—the hard way. You've been hurt, but you're wiser and nicer for it." He smiled again. "This is my last gesture where women are concerned. Fay and I are being married tonight." At her incredulous look he chuckled. "Yes! We are being married at 7 in her living-room with all my antiquated uncles and aunts witnessing the ceremony with great relief and joy. They have always loved Fay. I love her, too, and I intend to be utterly faithful. We are leaving almost at once for Venezuela by plane . . . So this is the end of the saga of Max Worthington, Judith. It will be a sort of twilight trail for Fay and me."

"I'm very glad for both of you."

"You were right. In the end it's the common, ordinary, little things that keep people close."

"You must have a great many things to do."

"My trunk is always ready for flight. And you?"

"I'm all right."

"I know you are. I didn't mean that. I meant rather that I want to inquire briefly about — about the young man who is to me no more than a boy in years."

"He's Stephen Larrabee and I've behaved very badly." She smiled. "He's the usual young man with a promising job, a set of golf sticks and a membership in the country club. He's the usual young man to a bystander, but he's someone special to me."

"You're very lucky. And now." He took her hand again and smiled at her. "We omitted the usual preliminaries so let's omit the usual good-bye. Shall we go?"

"Just one thing more. Suppose I had still loved you."

"That was the chance I took."

Walking beside his tall straight figure through the lobby, she thought, "This is the last time I shall ever see Max. It hurts because I like him. I never thought about liking him before. You never think about liking a man you're in love with. And I understand everything now. I understand him."

Presently they were standing on the sidewalk.

"Do you want a taxi, Judith?"

"No. I'm going to walk."

"I must get a taxi. He turned to her. Looking up, she saw the fine wrinkles around his eyes and the fair hair that was thinning. She gave him her hand and smiled a sad little smile for a farewell without regret.

"Max—"

"Don't say it. We think we have had high moments, but of all of them—this is our best. We won't forget, Judith, but it will be a remembering without wanting."

He turned away, stepped quickly into a waiting taxi that turned the corner and vanished.

Judith walked down Park avenue, thinking of the quickening and dying of her pulse when Max had come toward her. It was not that she had never loved him. Nor had it been infatuation or romantic excitement. Love does not die, but people changed.

Looking back, she could see every step in the change. Slowly rebellion had become contentment. And Stephen? Nothing wonderful or particularly stimulating had marked the times they had spent together. There had been just a series of little things. Slowly the roots of their lives had grown together by those series of seemingly unimportant meetings—until she needed him. She had not known that sitting beside him in a movie or facing him across a tennis court or dancing with him he had been making her need him. The dear, foolish, little things remained the longest . . . Nor had he known. For from the beginning he had needed her. From the beginning she had been his "best" . . . With Stephen it would not ever be a remembering without wanting because the want and the need would grow. The usual marriage with the usual man.

And on the same streets she had once walked in the month of March her heart crying for Max she walked now in July, all her questions of Max answered, her need of Stephen growing and all the simple, honest, direct things he had told her echoing in her mind.

In her room at last she went directly to the telephone and called Stephen's boarding house.

Presently she heard Mrs. Bradford's, "Hello."

Judith said, "Mrs. Bradford, this is Judith Barth. Is Mr. Larrabee there?"

"I'll see if you'll wait a minute."

Judith felt as though she were suspended in mid-air while she waited, hearing Mrs. Bradford's too large slippers clattering up the steps . . .

"Hello," Stephen said impatiently.

"Oh! This is Judith." Because she wanted to say so much she could say nothing.

He said, "Oh!" Then, "Well."

"I didn't expect to find you there. I thought you'd be driving up to Lake George today . . . " She didn't want to say that . . .

"Tomorrow morning first thing."

"I'm coming home tonight, Stephen. Will you meet my train?"

"Well, I don't know if I can. Very well. I'll meet you. What time?"

She told him.

He said, "Okay, see you then," in a cool voice.

A few moments later Judith was in a taxi on her way to the station.

The journey was endless. The look of contentment on the faces of other passengers increased her impatience. Seven o'clock came and went before she realized that Max and Fay were married.

After the train stopped at Clinton and Judith got off she saw Stephen coming toward her wearing a brown suit that deepened his sunburn. "The little things," she thought, her heart moving crazily.

His "Hello" was cordial but cool as he picked up her bag.

"Thanks for meeting me."

They walked through the station and out to his car.

"I haven't had any dinner, Stephen."

"Why didn't you get it on the train?" He said, trying to sound severe.

"I wasn't hungry."

"We'll stop some place. I've had mine."

"But you could eat ice cream You always can."

They entered a small place that had yellow chintz curtains at the windows and maple chairs and tables and pretty waitresses in yellow uniforms. The dinner hour had long passed and only two older women were there.

Judith ordered a light dinner; Stephen ice cream.

"I've never been here before," she said.

"Home-cooked meals." He smiled slightly. "People who live at Mrs. Bradford's always know all the restaurants in town."

If anybody had been watching, he or she would probably thought it odd to see her unclasp the charm bracelet. Max had given her, remove it from her wrist and leave it on the table.

Over it their eyes met. She nodded, her throat aching. "I wanted you to see me take it off. There it is, Stephen, and — and everything that went with it."

His eyes that once she thought too beautiful for a man darkened.

"Do you mean it, Judith?"

"And so much more. I—I mean so much that it all rushes together and I can't say anything."

"You mean you'll—marry me?"

"Wouldn't you like to hear about—"

"Maybe some other time, but not now. Not now!" He leaned closer and he was terribly excited. "You mean you'll marry me?"

"I haven't had any training to be a wife, Stephen, but I know some of the things she shouldn't be, so that should leave some of the things she should be—"

"You'll be a wonderful wife. And you'll marry me even if I have to go to camp for a year?"

He had not said that he loved her—yet. He had not called her by any endearing names. He just sat opposite her, looking at her. His saying, "You'll be a wonderful wife" was the loveliest thing that anyone had ever said to her.

"Stephen, everything that you are is what I want."

He smiled. He couldn't stop smiling. "What will your mother and dad say?"

"Shall we go and find out?"

"You haven't had your dinner."

"I don't want any."

"What shall we do with this?" Max's bracelet . . . "I don't care if you wear it now . . . Judith, we'll make it soon?"

"Very soon. Shall we go?"

"You were kidding You weren't hungry."

"I had to see you alone."

"I want to see you alone. I want to kiss you."

He left money on the table and they arose, and went toward the door. But a young man came in and spoke to Stephen.

"Your second dinner tonight, Dave?" Stephen asked him.

"Yes. I'm going to get out of that place. Mrs. Bradford's roasts appear in a different dress every night, but it's still the same old roast."

"I'm getting out, too." Stephen looked at Judith before he said, "Dave, this is the Larrabee corporation."

TIMBER READY

WHEELER, Ore—(U.P.)—Lumbermen in this area believe high-grade old-growth spruce may be used in American planes because of the metal shortages and operators are studying areas where they can log in event the call comes.

Airplane spruce manufactured in coast mills was used extensively in the last war.

KNEW FATHER

SALEM, Ore—(U.P.)—Robert Fallon and Albert McCullough were apprentices together 40 years ago at the San Francisco naval training station.

Fallon, now a chief petty-officer in charge of the recruiting station here, looked up from his desk to find McCullough standing in front of him.

SOLOMON WAS A PIKER

PAWHUSKA, Okla. —(U.P.)— A chain letter to end chain letters is now in circulation. The letter asked the person receiving it to send his wife to the name at the top of the list. It pointed out that if the chain went unbroken, the recipient would—at the end of the chain—receive 15,000 wives.

GEN. JOHNSON: Says Rubber Available From 12 Sources

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—

"There is so much good in the worst of us
And so much bad in the best of us
That it ill befits any of us
To find fault with the rest of us."

That old-fashioned admonition is probably entirely beside the point here because nobody—soldier or civilian—is going to criticize Douglas MacArthur for leaving Batan to go to Australia and assume the far eastern allied command.

Gen. Johnson.

If there were no other reason, he is a soldier and bound to obey the orders of his superior, the president. He was ordered to Australia. There are other reasons, for example, of which we don't know all the facts.

But after all this is said, there are many of his sincere and life-long well-wishers who will wish it could have been otherwise.

As far as the cold military facts are concerned, this leaves General Wainwright in command at Marıveles and Batan. To my certain knowledge, for I served there at the same time, Wainwright knows the tumbled terrain as well as MacArthur.

While his record is not quite so spectacular, he comes as near as anybody to being as good a soldier as MacArthur. He may not, and probably does not, have the confidence of the Filipinos to the same devoted degree, but he must have gained a great deal during this campaign, because he is as fearless as his former commander and has the same comradely easy-going understanding attitude toward enlisted men.

And yet—I say there are many old comrades of both men who, without a thought of criticism, wish it could have been otherwise.

MacArthur was in the spot of brightest opportunity in which a soldier even stood and he was making his brilliant most of it. It put him in the ranks of the world's greatest heroes.

One reason for this was that his position and the daring thing he was doing with it were so simple and easy to understand. He was the idol of two armies and two people—our own and the Filipinos' and both regarded him as their peculiar possession.

The field to which he now goes is far more complex. He is responsible to five nations—our own, the Aussies, the Filipinos, the British and the Dutch. He faces a country and a problem strange to him.

Regardless of his brilliant record, he has to make good again and this time to people who are, in some respects, strangers, and among some professionals who may look at him somewhat as a rival and his appointment as designed in part to engage us more deeply in affairs on the other side of the world.

It is no easy task to which he goes. The situation, while not hopeless, is certainly a long and dangerous chance. We may call it "supreme command" but that is so only in so far as our allies furnish him troops to put under that command.

When, with the utmost sympathy, we have said all that has been said here, the fact will remain to be shouted or whispered that, among a very few great commanders, he left the little army that had made him famous and, with a very few associates, escaped to less immediate dangers.

There may have been enough sufficient reasons, which we do not know completely, to justify this. But at the beginning of this high adventure many of us feared that it would be Philippine President Quezon who would leave MacArthur—who always scoffed at the thought Apparently Quezon is still on the job.

GASOLINE USE CUT ONE-FIFTH IN TWO AREAS

OPA Also Freezes Prices In Pacific Northwest and In East.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A card rationing system for gasoline consumers in all areas affected by transportation shortages will be installed "as soon as Mr. Henderson can get around to it," Oil Co-ordinator Harold L. Ickes said today.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Gasoline consumption by 10,000,000 motorists in the east and Pacific northwest was reduced by 20 per cent today, and operations of approximately 100,000 filling stations in the area were limited to a 12-hour day, six-day week.

Supplementing this wartime action, the Office of Price Administration froze the retail gasoline prices in the area at the levels prevailing last Friday and made violations punishable by a maximum $5,000 fine or one year imprisonment.

The freezing order, which will be in force for at least 60 days, becomes legally effective on Monday, March 23. In issuing the order, acting Price Administrator John E. Hamm disclosed last night that "serious consideration" was being given to the licensing of all filling stations in the curtailment area as a further measure to guarantee observance of the price regulations.

Like the reduced gasoline consumption, the freezing order applied to the District of Columbia and 19 states—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida east of the Apalachicola river, Oregon and Washington.

As consumption was curtailed, the petroleum industry warned that only "the fullest cooperation of every consumer" in the program could prevent drastic rationing by coupon books.

The reduction effective today—through a one-fifth cut in supplies delivered to service stations—was ordered by the War Production Board on recommendation of Petroleum Coordinator Ickes who said the condition of petroleum stocks in the areas had become acute due to submarine sinkings and war demands on tanker ships which normally supply these coastal states.

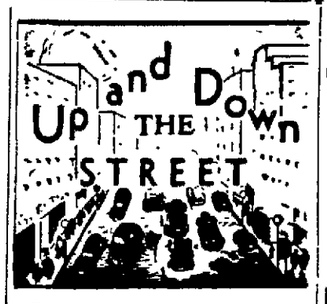
Up and Down THE STREET



Romantic gowns of the past are coming out of Mansfield trunks and old music files are being ransacked for the compositions popular in the day the gowns were fashionable. The reason is the pending program of the Sorosis club to be presented by Mrs. W. H. Gifford, 777 Park avenue, west, entitled, "Romance In American Dress." The program will present many of the handsome gowns worn by Mansfield society long ago.

A Crestline resident sees special significance in the drawing of 3485 as the first number in the draft lottery. G. K. Lombard writes that 3485 when divided by 17, the day of the month when the drawing was started, gives 205 as an answer. The sum of the digits in the number is 7, which says Lombard, should remind us of Dec. 7, when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor. The difference between the digets is 3, the number of the month in which the drawing was held. Lombard thinks that the figuring gets a little complicated from here on in but finishes up by using the number 205 again to recall predictions that the war will last from two to five years.

There's never a dull moment on one of the morning runs on the Glessner avenue buses, and though the passengers are packed in pretty tightly before the end of the run, they're pretty good-natured about it all. For instance, this morning two girls wanted to get off at a West Second street stop, but were standing well to the rear of the bus, which presented a problem of how to get to the door. Whereupon, up spoke one of the girls, "Come on, Betty—I'll run interference for you."

Proving that you never can tell what a woman will do next, but that it's likely to be unusual, Mrs. John McCabe, whom News-Journal readers will remember as Marianne Sprunger, society and feature writer, has turned up as photographer par excellence on the Columbus, Ga., Ledger-Inquirer. Her husband, Sergt. McCabe is attending army officers' training school. Copies of the Columbus paper received here contained "by-lined" photographs, and indicate that Marianne is as adept with camera as with typewriter.

SEES LATIN AMERICA, FREE FRENCH HELP

Drexsage Director Insists There's No Need To Automobile Use.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Eleven Latin American nations and the Free French are prepared to make available to the United States thousands of tons of rubber to meet civilian and military defense needs of this country, Elliot E. Simpson, director of the Drexsage Rubber company, of New York, said today.

In a statement concerning available sources of rubber, Simpson, who has been requested to testify before three congressional committees, said evidence now at hand indicates "there is no necessity for depriving the American people of their motor cars because of any danger of a rubber shortage."

Simpson cited foreign consular officials and other sources as claiming that there are 300,000,000 rubber trees in Brazil, 20,000,000 rubber trees in Mexico, and more than 95,000 trees in Honduras.

"Assurances have been received from the consular representatives of 12 friendly powers, eleven of whom are neighbors of this country in the western hemisphere, that thousands of tons of rubber can be made quickly available in their respective countries," Simpson said.

"The consular officers from whom assurances have been received include the New York representatives of Mexico, Guatemala, Bolivia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Colombia, Honduras, Nicaragua, Panama, Peru, Venezuela, and the Free French.

"The countries mentioned do not include Brazil, with whom we already have made an agreement for the purchase of rubber. However, I have learned that the amount of rubber available in Brazil is far beyond the estimates of American government experts.

"Albert R. Gould, of Burlingame, Cal., former rubber research expert for the British government, advises me that there are 300,000,000 tappable para rubber trees in the Amazon valley which could yield 1,500,000 tons of rubber per year.

"Julien Saenz, of the American consulate in New York, states there are 200,000 square miles of territory in northern Mexico on which the guayule rubber plant grows in abundance. Guayule can be quickly processed into a high grade rubber.

"Jack Danciger, of Danciger Brothers, Inc., of Fort Worth, Texas, also advises me he knows of 20,000,000 rubber trees in Mexico about which nothing is being done."

FACES PRISON

Bioff Aide Admits Extorting Million From Film Firms.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Nick Dean, the one-time collector for extortionist William "Willie" Bioff, today faced ten years in federal prison after pleading guilty to a charge of extorting "upward of $1,000,000" from four Hollywood film companies.

Dean, alias Circella, former Chicago night club operator and once a high-salaried figure on the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees payroll, was allowed to remain at liberty under bond of $25,000. He will be sentenced April 7 by Judge Grover M. Berkowitz.

Dean and Louis Kaufman, business agent of Newark local 244 of the I. A. T. S. E. were indicted in the extortion plot shortly before Bioff and George M. Browne, international president of the powerful movie union, were given long sentences.

FILM PRESIDENT DIES

NEW YORK — (U P) — Sidney Kent, 55, president of Twentieth Century-Fox Film corporation, died at his home early today of a heart attack.

FOUR HELD IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Piece of Rope Seen as Clue In Slaying of Pretty Shoe Store Clerk.

ATLANTA, Ga. —(INS)— While authorities pressed their investigation into the death of attractive, brown-haired Mrs. Mildred Seymour Williams, whose body was found stuffed in an automobile trunk in a water-soaked basement of an Atlanta home, four persons were held incommunicado at police headquarters today in connection with the case.

The four, booked on charges of suspicion of murder and subjected to a four-hour grilling during the night, are members of the family in whose house the body of the pretty, 22-year-old shoe store clerk was found.

Meanwhile, it was revealed that a piece of rope, similar to the piece with which the young woman had been trussed, was being held by police for examination by federal bureau of investigation experts. According to Detective Superintendent J. A. McKibben the piece of rope was found in the Griffin home.

A preliminary report that the girl apparently was beaten about the head and face and possibly strangled to death was issued by Dr J. C. Blalock, coroner's physician. He said the victim's skull had been fractured twice, her jaw broken and several teeth knocked out

Mrs. Williams, wife of P. M. Williams, Atlanta insurance agent, disappeared November 21.

PUPILS STAGE SPRING PLAY

125 At Woodland Appear at Appleseed Auditorium.

More than 125 pupils of Woodland school presented their annual spring program, "Patty Sue's Birthday Party," before a near-capacity audience at Johnny Appleseed auditorium last night.

Leading characters in the presentation were Nancy Hiles, Emily Campbell, Marilyn Beattie, Robert Burkhart and David Bell. Other pupils were cast in dance and song numbers.

The program was directed by Edith Moore, Helen E. Hartmann, C. A. Divelbiss, Mrs. John Correll, Mary Henry, Vera Smythe, Betty Braden, and Leon Bryant of the school staff.

NEW LONDON MAN HURT

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Charles Braskett, 39, New London, received a possible skull fracture last night when the automobile in which he rode with Michael McCafferty, 25, Columbus, overturned in South Columbus. Attendants at Mercy hospital said today Braskett's condition was "pretty good."

BRICKER WILL RUN FOR OHIO GOVERNORSHIP, DONAHEY WON'T

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Gov. John W. Bricker became an avowed candidate for a third term today when he signed 1,000 declarations of candidacy to be filed with the secretary of state.

The declarations first will be turned over to Republican state headquarters which will send them to county organizations to be circulated for signatures.

They are expected to be placed in circulation this week.

Besides the unanimous endorsement of his party's state central committee, 82 of the 88 Republican county committees have approved the governor's candidacy, said Don C. Power, executive secretary. Power said the six other counties would add their endorsements.

The governor's petitions must be filed with the secretary of state before June 12 to qualify him as a candidate in the August primary.

Meanwhile A. Vic Donahey, former U S. senator, said today he doesn't want a fourth term as governor of Ohio.

Donahey ended reports that he would seek the governorship again by announcing that he could "see no emergency which would require me to endanger my health by ending my retirement from public office."

He added, however, that "if there were an emergency and the people of Ohio wanted me as governor, I would gladly give my life for my state, of course."

12 JOIN NAVY

Four From Mansfield Among Latest Recruits.

Twelve more men from this area, four of them from Mansfield, have been sent to Cleveland this week for admission to the navy following their enlistment at the Mansfield Recruiting station.

COTERIE CLUB.

Coterie club members will hold a special business meeting and luncheon Friday noon at the Mansfield-Leland.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, March 20.

THE ASTRAL combination of forces presages a rather "happy medium" state of affairs, with all things going along smoothly if not spectacularly toward all cherished goals This applies particularly to writings, correspondence, documents, agreements, communications, travel and agencies.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of steady progress with a generally happy and propitious state of affairs, in which friendly interest of influential personages may be to financial advantage.

A child born on this day should be versatile and resourceful as well as practical and energetic.

Personal To Fat Girls

Now you may slim down your face and figure without starvation dieting or back-breaking exercises. Just eat sensibly and take Marmola under the conditions and according to directions on the package.

Marmola Tablets have been sold to the public for more than thirty years. More than twenty million boxes have been distributed during that period.

Marmola is not a cure-all. Marmola is only for adult fat persons whose fatness is caused by a thyroid deficiency (hypothyroidism) but who are otherwise normal and healthy. We do not make any diagnosis as that is the function of your physician, who must be consulted for that purpose. Why not try to lose those ugly, uncomfortable pounds the Marmola way? Get a box of Marmola today from your druggist.

Children Who Go Out Too Little

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

THE AVERAGE youth today seems to go out too much. Yet there are a few youths who stick too close to the home. Unfortunately, their parents may not recognize this act as a problem. Some parents, indeed, will brag about the son or daughter who's always home," who is never girl-crazy, or boy-crazy, only to discover later they were wrong.

The mother who wrote the following letter does see a problem in her adolescent daughter who prefers to stay at home nearly all the time.

Mother's Problem

"Dear Dr Myers:—Our daughter, Ruth, 16, is the eldest of five. She is an obedient and thoughtful sort of girl, the type who never fails to escort her grandmother into the church safely; the one who takes the dish towel from me and urges me to go in and rest Our children are all stay-at-homes Our problem is not how to keep our children home but how to get them to go out. . . .

"On Sunday it takes much persuasion to get Ruth to go to a neighbor friend's home. Often if some girls stop in of an evening to ask her to go to a Y. P's organization or elsewhere, she usually finds some excuse to stay home She seems to find the security of her home, music, the baby, etc., more attractive than the company of young folks. I fear in time she will become a 'wall flower'

"She doesn't like boys either with the exception of one her exact age for whom she entertains a secret liking. I should like to see her mingle with more boys and girls. Shall we simply stay out of the picture and allow her social life to work itself out or what do you advise?"

The Doctor's Answer

How I replied· Yes; you, her parents can and should do something, but not by talking to her of her social lack and the need of going out with other youths. You will have to set the stage so she will choose a better way and find satisfaction from doing so. Your friends might be able to help you. To set the stage is a great art which parents have to work out in their own way. It is not easy for me or anybody else to tell you exactly how. I wish it were.

Here are some of your objectives: To help her acquire such social skills and interests as will make her feel at ease with boys and girls.

It might help her to observe other girls of good habits and ideals who have many friends, in order to acquire the traits in them that win popularity. Also it might help her to realize that she need not be talking most of the time in order to be popular and comfortable. A good listener is a rare and attractive person. By listening enthusiastically to others they forge themselves and then talk without effort or self-consciousness.

My booklet, "Learning to Be Likable," was written to help such persons as your daughter You also may have a selected list of books on personality growth and mental health, some of which discuss these problems, which can be had by writing me at 235 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I don't know how I'm going to manage a whistle concealed in my hand," I told Gus doubtfully, although his adamant look warned me that I would better comply with his wish. "I probably shall have to write some things down which this old man will tell me, and I have to show him something now in my bag which my father has sent to him. The whistle—

"I'm sorry Missis Graham," Gus said obstinately, "but if you don't take the whistle, I'll have to go into that house with you, and stay there all the time you're in it. Your father told me to take care of you."

"All right," I capitulated suddenly. "I'll take the whistle. You must make me a promise also."

"Please tell me what it is," he said cautiously.

Arranges Whistle Code.

"I'll explain my meaning first," I told him. "Now, Gus, you know as well as I do that if I run into real danger in that house, which I don't expect, one man coming in won't do any good. Anybody inside would have revolvers

"Now here is what I will do. If I need you, and there isn't any shooting danger, I'll blow three short blasts like this," and I put the whistle to my lips and illustrated my meaning.

"I'll hear them all right," Gus said with emphasis.

"But if I run into real danger," I went on, "I probably would have time only for one blast before whoever was threatening me would get the whistle away from me

"Now, I want you to promise me that if you hear only one blast, you will not come in alone, but will bring the other two along."

Gus Makes a Promise.

I felt supremely ridiculous in outlining these precautions for a visit to a harmless old professor, where my greatest risk in all probability might be the old man's disinclination, to have his isolation disturbed.

But Gus patently was taking my warning most seriously.

"I suppose you're right," he said, "and I make you that promise But I'll have the men so near around the house that we'll be inside two seconds after you blow that whistle. You put it away now, where you can get it out. Don't mix it up with your other one"

"I couldn't I told him, smiling "They don't look at all alike,"

"And here is something else," Gus said, tugging a small flat leather case from his pocket and putting it in my hand. "You put this in your bag. It has keys, all kinds of keys. And it has a couple of little tools, too. You never can tell; you might need them. And you got a pisaol. I know: I saw it one time. Have wou got it today?"

"Yes, Gus, it is in my bag," I replied. "I never travel without it."

"That is good," he said gravely "Be sure it's on top in your bag, where you can get at it."

Fears Armored Car.

I wrestled with an unholy desire for laughter, for which I knew Gus never would forgive me. His fears would have seemed entirely ludicrous, had it not been for the passing of that other armored car, about which I was still skeptical

We had been traveling one of the most beautiful roads I ever had seen, which gradually ascended a mountain, ran along its crest for two or three miles, then began to dip again.

Now we went steadily downward, with a wonderfu panorama of hills and valleys and tiny villages spread out before us, until finally we saw ahead a broad concrete road, into which our road eventualy would merge. The driver drew his car to a stop just before the junction

"That is Route 7," he said "We only have to travel a few feet on it, but we'd better send out a scouting party first."

Keep Blood Streams Romping

By MME. QUI VIVE

Tell me, pretty maiden, are the little footies cold when you wake at night? Are your hands clammy? Does the sassy nose take on a rosy glow when the day is nippy? Do you have to resort to counterfeit blushes that you buy at the drug store? Yes? Ah-ha! You'd better stir your stumps, as our great grandmothers used to say, get out and hoof it so your blood streams will wake up and get on the job.

Beauty specialists stress the need of good circulation. They bawl out the lazy customers who say that calesthenics, to them, is just a couple of pangs in the neck. Well then what do the idlers expect? It was meant that we should lead active lives. Sitting around and riding in the family gas chariot won't help the complexion. Nor does the idle existence aid the digestion or whet the appetite. Though there is work for every one these days, we still have the pretty little loafers with us. Won't lift a hand They are the loudest yowlers about beauty griefs.

Let's get down to brass tacks. The blood is the medium of exchange between all parts of the body, from the toppingest hair on your head to your smallest toe. It is the caterer that brings the food, it is the scavenger that carts away the garbage. It carries repair material for worn out cells. It stores up forces

When a girl has plenty of outdoor life, air-washes her lungs and exercises her muscles the circulatory sysem is grateful, rewards her with good skin coloring, a zestful appetite and restful sleep. She is likely to have a sounder nervous system than little Miss Do-Nothing, less likely to be bored. She is not a fussy eater and assimilation is good. After food has been liquefied, converted into new substance in the digestive organs, it is poured into the blood It is just as well to understand these matters if you are a soldier in the army that is fighting in the cause of health, hygiene and good appearance.

Many a woman who suffers from restlessness and nervousness whose skin is pale and eyes are dull, is paying the penalty for starving the cells of her body. They are eager for fresh air and proper food, those little cell citizens.

Deep breathing does away with blood stagnation. It whips up the blood streams After five minutes of deep inhalations the flesh will glow. Many women are shallow breathers, would be better off if they mended their ways Whenever you step out of doors, take long deep whiffs of air

Simple setting up exercises are worth the effort. By contraction and expansion the muscles influence the circulation Exercise in moderation strengthens the heart. Rouse yourself, if you are self-indulgent. Be fully alive

Braggadocio is the name of a Missouri town.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THIS RABBIT HAD TO —

One cottonfield hand said he saw a rabbit climb a tree. "Go on," his friend ejaculated, "how can a rabbit climb a tree?" And the answer was: "This rabbit had to." So it is with some contracts. If your partner gets you into an absurdly high one, or if you do it yourself, you may find yourself in a position where you have to make some kind of funny play, or at least try to, unless you intend to surrender without a fight.

	♠ A K 8 6 ♥ J 9 6 3 ♦ 9 8 2 ♣ 8 7
♠ Q 10 4 ♥ K Q 5 2 ♦ Q 4 3 ♣ 10 9 5	N. W. E. S.	♠ 5 3 2 ♥ 10 8 7 4 ♦ A J 10 6 5 ♣ 4
	♠ J 9 7 ♥ A ♦ K 7 ♣ A K Q J 6 3 2

(Dealer North Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 Pass	Pass	1 ♣	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	3 NT
2. Pass	Pass	1 ♣	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♦	Pass	6 NT

Nobody else would bid the hand quite like South at the second table, and other players in the duplicate who saw the "traveling score sheet" on the hand could not understand how he made the contract. Investigation showed there was no particular mystery about it, and not so very much about the bidding North's call of hearts on his second turn, the second suit shown by him, encouraged South to use the Blackwood convention.

The 6-No Trumps declarer got the same lead as did the 3-No Trumpers, so far as suit was concerned, a heart, though it was the K against his slam and the 2 against the mere games The other declarers simply ran ten consecutive tricks, seven clubs and two spades, after taking the heart A.

The slam declarer had to take twelve consecutive tricks, however, and saw only one hopeful way to do it—if West held both the Q and 10 of spades. So after the heart A, he led the spade J. West covered and the K won. To his hand he came with a club and led the spade 9. West saw that covering this would end any guess, so played the 4. South let the 9 go through, and it won. Then the 7 to the A dropped the last two spades, and the 8 was good. With five tricks now in, there was nothing left to do but cash that last spade and run six more clubs, then give up the diamond K.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY.

Miss Norma Styles was honored with a party Friday evening by a group of her friends in celebration of her birthday anniversary. William Leroy, who will leave the city soon for military training, was also honored The evening was spent socially. Luncheon was served The party was given by Miss Marie Mapes, Miss Louise Brightbill, Calvin Harper, Robert Black and Enzie Mapes.

SCHOOL HOURS REVOLVE WITH WORK SHIFTS

University of Pittsburgh Designs Course For Mill Workers.

(By United Press)

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — The distinction between night school and day school has disappeared in a special University of Pittsburgh course designed for workers in defense mills.

First semester classes in the pioneer education project have closed for 100 freshmen who signed up for the course when it first was offered last fall.

Designed so that those who want to work at defense jobs in Pittsburgh district mills can continue their schooling, the course is adapted to the rotating schedule of shifts employed in most of the plants.

Under the Pitt arrangement, the same instructor teaches both a day and night class in the same subject. Thus, the student may attend either session, to fit his working schedule.

Most of the district mills alternate day and night shifts. A worker who is on the night shift will attend day classes during that period, and when he is changed back to the daylight "trick" he will attend school in the evening.

The courses are open to freshmen students in engineering, mines, business administration and liberal arts. They will be opened to upperclassmen if enough requests are received.

"Many recent graduates of our high schools who, under normal conditions, would ordinarily have entered college, are employed in industry in response to the country's call for stepped-up production," University Provost Rufus Fitzgerald said.

"Formerly they could go to neither night nor day school because the rotating shifts in industry prevented their having the same periods free for more than a few weeks at a time. So the new program was arranged to allow ambitious men and women to take college work.

Although full college credit is given for the "custom-tailored" course, the student, because of the smaller number of courses taken, must attend school for at least six years.

Actors vs. Gestapo.

"To Be Or Not To Be," Jack Benny's starring vehicle that provides the screen comedian with a new kind of role continues at the Ohio. Benny and Carole Lombard appear as leaders of a troupe of "ham" actors who get mixed up with the Gestapo at the time of Germany's invasion of Poland.

Flight From War.

The flight of civilian refugees ahead of the invading armies is shown in "Paris Calling," a powerful drama of the underground movement in German-occupied territory showing at the Madison. Elizabeth Bergner, the Continental star, has the leading role with a supporting cast that includes Basil Rathbone and Randolph Scott. Miss Bergner plays the role of a socialite who becomes involved in the movement and Scott appears as a marooned R. A. F. pilot in enemy territory. "Niagara Falls," with Marjorie Woodworth and Slim Summerville is the second attraction.

A jealous husband masquerades as his own rival in "The Chocolate Soldier," the comedy with music, showing at the Ritz. Nelson Eddy as a handsome European singer has the role of the husband who impersonates a gallant Russian in order to test his wife's faithfulness. Rise Stevens, the vivacious singing star of the Metropolitan, appears opposite Eddy as the wife, the toast of Vienna. Eddy and Miss Stevens sing some of the original numbers from the Strauss operetta by the same name and Eddy also sings "Song of the Flea." Lloyd Nolan in "Buy Me That Town," is the second attraction.

"Springtime in the Rockies," another Gene Autry rip-roaring western is showing at the Park. Girls from an agricultural college furnish excitement in the picture when they attempt to introduce their theories among such old cow hands as Gene and Smiley Burnette. Polly Rowles plays one of the leads. "Women In War," the second attraction, presents Wendy Barrie, Elsie Janis and Dorothy Peterson in a tense drama based on the emotional problems of the current war.

* * *

Draft "rejectees" organize for home defense in the current comedy, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," showing at the Majestic. Jackie Gleason and Jack Durant, two new screen comedians, act as leaders in the movement and after a series of riotous sequences prove useful to the "cops" by capturing an escaped band of murderers. Borrah Minevitch and His Harmonica Rascals are in the production also Florence Rice as a newspaper gal. John Mack Brown, in "The Man From Montana," is the second attraction.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Several weeks ago it was Mansfield's Johnny Barrett grabbing the lineage in the Sporting News as one of the outstanding rookie outfielders with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

This week's Sporting News tosses the type for Mansfield's Hank Edwards, called THE outstanding rookie of the Cleveland Indians.

Here is the way the story goes:

Henry (Hank) Edwards, 23-year-old native of Norwalk, O., has just about clinched the distinction of being the outstanding rookie in the Cleveland Indians' spring training camp, and unless Gerry Walker—still a holdout at this writing—can do a quick and competent job of dynamiting, the young slugger seems likely to share with Jeff Heath and Roy Weatherly the duty of patroling the Tribal garden come opening day, April 14.

To this long-distance forecast such other aspirants as Larry Rosenthal, Fabian Gaffke, Orin Hockett and Charley Workman undoubtedly will take exception, for Manager Lou Boudreau has made nothing approaching an official decision. If the report that Edwards is the leading candidate stirs his rivals into even greater efforts to outdo him, Boudreau will be highly elated—and, of course, he will give the job to the man who seems to have earned it.

But right now, Edwards has an edge. Both in power and in timeliness, he has been one of the most effective hitters in the exhibition games. His spirit and heads-up daring on the base lines already have been singled out by Boudreau for special commendation, and he is more than adequate on defense.

If Edwards does win the right field job, Cleveland fans can thank another Indian protector of that corner for sending them so promising an athlete. Elmer Smith, who, in 1920, hit the first home run with the bases filled in world series history, hails from Milan, an easy lob from Norwalk. Not only was Smith the boyhood idol of young Edwards, he also was his manager on the Norwalk team in 1938 and was instrumental in the fact that the Indians became interested in the boy.

Edwards was an all-around athlete at Norwalk high school, but he had to quit in his sophomore year and go to work to help his family. His father was ill. Incidentally, Edwards still supports his ailing dad as well as his mother, two younger sisters and a brother, so although he isn't married, there is little possibility that he will be taken by the draft.

The Indians had their eye on Edwards by the time he started hitting home runs for Mansfield of the Ohio State league, and when he batted 364 in 121 games for Cedar Rapids of the Three-I last season they decided he was ready for a big time trial.

He joined the Tribe late last summer, and even then made a deep impression on Roger Peckinpaugh. At Cedar Rapids, Edwards hit 24 home runs, a noteworthy feat for a lefthanded hitter in a league where the right field fences average 350 feet from home plate.

* * *

Unquote the Sporting News.

The baseball paper in another story quotes Manager Lou Boudreau as listing another former Mansfielder, Steve Gromek, among the more promising of the Indians' young hurlers.

We may have no baseball here this summer, but we can still find plenty to talk about in the activities of Barrett, Edwards and Gromek.

Class 'B' Cage Tourney Opens at Springfield

Wide Open Scramble Looms For Title Dropped By Glenford

By JAMES EMERSON

SPRINGFIELD—(UP)—Sixteen of the finest small school basketball teams in Ohio lined up today for the first round of final elimination games in the heated battle for the championship glory none has achieved before—the Class B state high school cage title.

The 20th renewal of this "hell-for-leather" sporting classic where past won-lost records mean practically nothing had 16 favorites for the crown relinquished last month by Glenford. The easiest and most startling way to discover this was to extol the virtues of any single team in the presence of the rabid followers, young and old, of the other 15.

And the title scramble does appear more wide-open than in any previous recent year. There are no past champions in the three-day tournament being held outside Columbus for the first time since its inception in 1923.

Bluffton, which has engaged in four past state meets, more than any other entry, finished as runnerup, in 1929. None of the other teams has appeared in more than two previous tourneys and no less than 11 will be making their debut in the state finals.

Only one of the 16—Xenia O. S. S. O.—is a repeater from last year's classic and two—Clearview and Bremen—have yet to taste defeat in 23 starts this season. Both of the unbeaten fives are drawn in the upper bracket and will meet in the second round tomorrow if they get by initial foes today. Bremen opens the meet in the Wittenberg gymnasium against New Washington (19-4) from Crawford county while Clearview plays Wyoming (15-7) in the second contest.

The third game between Bluffton (16-4) and O. S. S. O. (14-3) will bring together two upper bracket favorites. Bluffton went through a particularly tough schedule in the northwestern district while the Xenia outfit should benefit from the experience gained last year.

Opening feature of the lower bracket may well be the Webster Township (22-1)-Fairport Harbor (21-2) encounter. Webster, the smallest school in the meet with 40 boys, romped through its regular schedule unbeaten before losing the final game in the Wood county playoffs. They got back on the victory trail and stayed there when it counted in the district meet at Fremont. Fairport is one of the bigger schools and has been seasoned on Class A opposition.

Somerset (22-6) a little school from Glenford's home district, faces a tough foe in Tipp City, (21-1), with twice as many boys. The truly "small school" battle of the evening brings together Latham Rural (31-3) with an enrollment of 62 boys and Waynesburg (25-3) with an enrollment of 67.

Other first round games pair Yorkville (20-7) and Marion St. Marys (13-8) in the upper bracket and Gnadenhutten (24-1) and Ottawa Hills (17-3) in the lower.

The Wittenberg gym will handle more than 4,800 fans for each session of the tourney which was forced out of its somewhat permanent home in the state fairgrounds coliseum at Columbus by the American Bowling Congress.

OTT'S OLD MEN FIND TRAINING'S TOUGH

CLEARWATER, Fla.—(AP)—There is always something to plague a baseball manager, but Mel Ott of the New York Giants is getting his in double doses. As if Johnny Mize's arm trouble weren't enough, Bill Werber went on the hospital list yesterday when the knee which had bothered him in Cincinnati last year became swollen overnight.

ROOKIE ROSTER

ALLEN GETTEL, pitcher, New York Yankees. . . . Tall righthanded hurler who won 12 games against nine defeats for Newark last season. . . . Native of Norfolk, Va. . . . Stands three inches over six feet and weighs nearly 200 pounds. . . . Worked in many relief roles last season.

Enoch Rolls 640 In Art Rattan

Enoch paced the Art Rattan bowling league last night at Colony alleys with a 640 total, starting out with a blistering 230-213 and then dropping to 179.

J. Hill took high game with 235.

Tygers and Bowling Green Look Evenly Matched for Cage Joust

Bobcats Have Won 17 Games and Lost Three During Campaign

IN SPITE of an apparent advantage held by Bowling Green seasonal records, the Bobcats and Mansfield high's Tygers appear as evenly matched for their opening game in the Findlay regional Class A basketball tournament tomorrow night as two teams can be.

Bobby Colburn's 'Cats have won 17 games and lost three this season, and have chalked up 676 points to 480 for the opposition.

Vern Hoffman's Tygers have turned in 18 victories and dropped six tilts and have racked up 924 points while alloting the foe 756.

* * *

Both teams have good arguments to minimize the defeats on their record. Mansfield lost four of its first five games, starting into the cage season too soon after a hard football campaign, and taking nearly a month to trade in their heavy charging football legs for the more nimble underpinning required by the court sport.

The Bobcats dropped all three of their defeats on enemy courts, and avenged them in home floor tilts. They lost at Fremont 21-24, and defeated the Little Giants at home 34-25. They were beaten 19-21 in an overtime game at Findlay and turned the tables on the Oilers at home, 35-17. And they split a home-and-home series with Tiffin Columbian.

Mansfield also lost at Findlay in the second game of the season, 21-25, after holding the Oilers to one basket in the first half and gaining a long lead.

Both Mansfield and Bowling Green lost a pair of guards during the regular season, the Tygers through ordinary processes, and the 'Cats through tragedy.

Jack Shiplet, star Tyger guard, graduated at midyear, and Ken Krupp was lost to the team Feb. 15 when he became 20 years old.

Ed Roether, Bowling Green guard, was killed when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by a train in December, and his first replacement, Tommy Mercer, was injured in the same accident.

Both teams have come along without suffering too much from these losses in the defensive department. Bob Ingraham of Bowling Green and Joe Romano of Mansfield each made honorable mention at guard in the Associated Press All-Ohio high school selections. Ingraham was placed on the first team of the All-Buckeye league squad.

Mansfield holds the edge in the all-star department, Bob Winbigler having made the third team in the AP All-Ohio.

Winbigler's 318 scoring total for the season is just 100 points better than the Bowling Green leader, Ronnie Waugh, giant center, who has 218, compared with Tyger Center Paul Dietzel's 218.

* * *

Coach Vern Hoffman has followed his usual training schedule for tournament play this week, giving the boys skull practice on Monday, and following up with not too strenuous workouts the rest of the week.

Bowling Green will have a big advantage in the scouting department, as the entire team sat in as Mansfield defeated Ashland for the Sandusky district title last Saturday night.

Mansfield hasn't scouted Bowling Green, but they'll find the Bobcats playing a game similar to their own, depending on a passing offense, with the quick break used only occasionally.

The Tyger-Bobcat battle is scheduled for 7.30 tomorrow night, while Celina meets Toledo Central Catholic in the second game.

Castleman to Coach Again

Four Ohio State Staff Members Join Navy.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Dr. Frank R. Castleman, a "one-man team" of another day, came back to his old job of track coach at Ohio State university today, but he won't don a uniform and demonstrate personally how to run.

He is 65 years old and besides, he remarked, "the curves are too sharp and it might be discouraging to the men."

* * *

Dr. Castleman, who was track coach from 1913 to 1932, replaces Larry Snyder who with three freshmen football tutors goes into the naval air corps.

Snyder and his associates will be physical education instructors. The others are Eddie Bickle, football assistant and freshman basketball coach; Trevor Rees, freshman gridiron mentor, and Fritz Heisler, his aide.

Snyder will receive a lieutenant commander's commission and probably will be assigned as first assistant to Maj. Bernie Bierman at the naval pre-flight training school at the University of Iowa. Rees, Bickle and Heisler were commissioned lieutenants.

Dr. Castleman was an All-America football player at Colgate, and starred in the hurdles, 100 and 220-yard dashes, the broad jump and shot put, in addition to playing baseball.

Following his graduation in 1906, he turned down a chance at professional baseball to become instructor of athletics at Colorado university.

He came to Ohio State in 1913 as director of track and assistant football coach and handled the track assignment until 1922, when Snyder took over. His 1925 team won the National Collegiate association track meet at Chicago.

Dr. Castleman says he is going to enoy active coaching again after 10 quiet years as physical education professor.

Chicago Keglers Splurge

Budweisers Take Long ABC Lead With 3131.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—All but conceded the five-man title, the Chicago Budweisers rested far in front of the field today in the 42nd annual bowling congress championships following a sensational 3,131 count yesterday.

Highlighting the most terrific barrage the tourney has experienced in this division in recent years, the Budweisers roared along toward their first title with a consistent 1,049-1,050-1,032 series while four other quintets succeeded in riddling the "high-ten" leader lists.

It was Joe Traubenik who carried the squad along the trail leading to the $1,500 first place award with a terrific 682 series while anchor-man Joe Wilman contributed 656, and only lead-off Bill Hargadon failed to better par 600.

Only four teams ever have bettered the 3,131 count of the "Buds" and in each instance the score was worth the championship. Vogl Brewing of Forest Park, Ill., are the defending champions.

Meanwhile, a few alleys away, Gimbel's Linsz Classic of Cleveland rocketed into second place—after holding the lead for some 10 minutes—with a 2,892 tally behind a brilliant 1,063 finale, the current tourney's high single game.

* * *

Overlooked McClanahan's Restaurant of Lancaster, O., took command of fourth place with a 2,876 count while the Burlington Zephyrs of Chicago went into seventh place with 2,803 and Varga Crystal Rocks of Cleveland accounted for eighth place 11 pins to the rear with 2,792.

The standings:

Five-man: Budweisers, Chicago, 3,131; Gimbel's Linsz Classic, Cleveland, 2,892; Struther's Bowling Center, Youngstown, O., 2,878; McClanahan's Restaurant, Lancaster, O., 2,876; F. & N. Tavern, Dayton, Ky., 2,861. (Winning score last year—3,065.)

Singles: Joseph Kaminski, Youngstown, O., 692; Vincent Gries, Elizabeth, N. J., 690; Harold Breutzman, Cudahy, Wis., 681; John Di Floria, Buffalo, N. Y., 679; Russell Shuster, Youngstown, O., 673. (Winning score last year—745.)

All-events: Frank Schnaitman, Chester, Pa., 1,889; Joseph Kaminski, Youngstown, O., 1,889; Richard Hobbs, Lima, O., 1,887; James Reinsmith, Syracuse, 1,833; Howard Dammel, Cincinnati, 1,830. (Winning score last year—2,013.)

Selby Gets 697 to Lead Liederkranz to 3135 Total

Paced by the torrid Harold Selby, Mansfield Liederkranz keglers smacked the City A league maples in ABC championship style last night at Colony alleys with a 3135 total on games of 1039-1089-1007.

That total was just four pins better than the 3131 by which Chicago Budweisers took over first place in the ABC tournament at Columbus last night.

Selby blasted a 697 total on games of 257-223-217 to lead the league, while two of his teammates hit over 600, Keifer getting 635 and a 257 game, and Duke Weber 619 and a 236 game.

The entire league was blistering the timber. Bissman Birdie Brands had a 3111 total on games of 993-1020-1098, which was high game for the league. Orange St. Cafe turned in 3057 including a 1079 game, and Eagles marked up a 3009 total with a 129 handicap. Eagles had one game of 1032 on the board.

Heading the Bissman attack were Winnie Cleckner with a 668 total, Farrell Hipp with 653 and a 258 game, and Dale Cleckner with 649. For Orange St. Cafe Orlie Grable had 625, Ed Henrich 634, Carl Phillipon 621, and Art Thomas 606, while for the Eagles Bob Bieri had 630, and Jim Orr 626.

2—Card of Thanks

TO EXPRESS our deepest gratitude we sincerely thank our many friends, relatives, neighbors and all who were so generous in their many acts of kindness, expressions of sympathy and beautiful floral tributes in the loss of our dear sister, Miss Margaret Simpson. Especially do we wish to thank Rev. Corwin for his kind words of consolation, and the Wappner Funeral Directors for their courteous assistance.

THE SIMPSON FAMILY.
ROBERT M. HALE,
C.W. PARR.
(L-k)

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need

PAM—More Trouble? By A. W. Brewerton

I WOULDN'T HAVE THOUGHT IT POSSIBLE, A PERSON COULD BE TAKEN PRISONER SO EASILY!
3-19
ANNE WESTON, SECRETARY TO MR. BLANK, IS OLDER THAN PAM, BUT CERTAINLY BEARS A REMARKABLE RESEMBLANCE TO OUR HEROINE
WHEN THAT WOMAN CALLED ME—BY NAME—OVER TO HER CAR, SHE SOUNDED SO FRIENDLY I FELT CERTAIN SHE WAS SOMEONE I KNEW!
THEN, WHEN I WENT OVER TO THE CAR, A MAN'S ARM SHOT OUT, AND I WAS DRAGGED INSIDE! HE CLAMPED HIS HAND OVER MY MOUTH, AND THEY DROVE RAPIDLY OUT TO THIS ISOLATED HOUSE!
BACK TO BLANK'S OFFICE NOW, WHERE PAM SEEMS TO BE FACING A NEW DILEMMA!
THE PHONE! OH, DEAR! I JUST KNOW THAT MEANS TROUBLE!

PAYS PROFIT

WHITEFIELD, N. H.—(INS)—Fifty women in this tiny town have formed a knitting cooperative that pays real dividends.

Six years ago Mrs. Frank S. Dodge called the group together and suggested they pool their resources, knit caps, mittens and socks, and divide the proceeds from the sale.

Last year the group purled through about 800 pounds of wool and split profits of $4,200.

Seven towns in the country are named Dixie.

STOCK SALES DRIED UP ON DAY'S MARKET

MacArthur Influence Still Props List, Other News Proves Uninspiring.

NEW YORK—Selling dried up in today's stock market and leaders, here and there, managed to tack on fractional recoveries.

Early resistance was displayed by U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Standard Oil (NJ), Goodyear, Woolworth, Boeing, Sperry, General Electric, DuPont, Kennecott, Phelphs Dodge and Johns-Manville.

Lacking much come-back power were American Telephone, North American, Consolidated Edison, International Harvester, Union Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio and Bethlehem Steel.

There is nothing much in the war news to inspire bidding, brokers said, although the MacArthur influence continued as a prop for financial sentiment. Taxes, labor and business imponderables again served as moderate buying brakes.

Boardrooms studied with some satisfaction the annual summary of the U. S. Steel corporation, disclosing the concern broke all production, sales and payroll records in 1941. Net income of $116,171,075 compared with $102,211,282 the year before.

A constructive indicator was seen in the Dun & Bradstreets survey placing bank clearings in 23 cities during the past week at $7,929,673,000, a new 1942 peak. The aggregate was 24.5 per cent above the preceding week and 10.3 per cent larger than the like 1941 period.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Attends Meeting—County Engineer Howard Sword was in Akron today for a meeting of the Northeastern Ohio County Engineers' association.

Man Arrested — Robert Jones, 75 Ashland road, was arrested by sheriff deputies yesterday on a charge of non-support of three minor children. His case was referred to the probate court.

Arrest Marion Driver—Jack Arler of Marion, posted bond for appearance in municipal court on March 23 last night after being arrested by state highway patrolmen on a charge of driving his auto across a yellow line. Arler was arrested on U. S. Route 42 near the city.

Motorist Fined — Woodrow N. Carberry, 28, Ashland, was fined $100 and costs and his operator's license was suspended for a year in municipal court this morning after he had pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. Carberry was arrested by police after J. D. Amsbaugh, 57 South Walnut street, charged him with damaging the Amsbaugh auto. Police said that Carberry's car crashed into the rear of Amsbaugh's auto which was parked on North Diamond street.

Trucker Cited—Arrested on a charge of operating a truck with an insecurely fastened load yesterday on State Route 39, north of Mansfield, Charles A. Shaw, 54, of 115 North Adams street, was cited to appear in municipal court Monday morning. He was arrested by state highway patrolmen.

Organizing Class — Another standard first aid class for graduate nurses is being organized by Miss Faye Chamberlin of the Visiting Nurses association. She announced that the class will start as soon as 20 members are enrolled and requests that interested persons notify her by calling 1584-6.
